BUILD YOUR NEW CHURCH ON VERSATILITY AND UNSHAKABLE STOCKS ECONOMY.

Catholic Church of the Assumption, Southampton

These days a church has to be a great deal more than a church.

It has to be a social centre too.

Even a sports hall.

But who do you go to — a conventional builder, or Stocks?

Stocks will build you a church cheaper than any conventional builder, and can complete the job in half the time.

And the modular Stocks system is infinitely variable.

Founded on economy, versatility and permanence your new church building will be individually designed — modern or traditional style.

What's more the exclusive Stocks package deal takes all the work and worry off your hands — right through from design to decoration.

Remember Stocks — the unshakable one.

Send now for colour brochure featuring actual case histories and details of how Stocks can bring you considerable savings on your new church building.

THE FIRST ISSUE OF THE DIRECTORY

Printed at Aquhorties, 1829

OF HIS EMINENCE THE CARDINAL ARCHBISHOP
OF ST. ANDREWS AND EDINBURGH

Through the labours of a succession of priests, The Catholic Directory for Scotland this year attains the distinction of reaching its one hundred and fiftieth issue. Without a break it has been published each year, developing from the slim liturgical calendar with its list of names of the clergy working throughout our country, and printed with a little hand press in the seminary at Aquhorties, into its present form. Indeed, a remarkable achievement. And the more remarkable since it is certainly among the earliest if not the earliest, national Catholic directory to have been produced for so long a time without the omission of one single publication.

We record our gratitude to each editor in the long line that extends from the Reverend John Macpherson who set up the first edition, to the Reverend Hugh Boyle who is responsible for this one hundred and fiftieth issue.

The Catholic Directory has a unique value for us since it constitutes one of the most valuable source books for the history of the Church in Scotland during the past century and a half.

In this year that also marks the Centenary of the Restoration of the Hierarchy, re-established by the Apostolic Letter of Pope Leo XIII of 4th March, 1878, we must surely be deeply and gratefully conscious of the dedicated and difficult labours of bishops, priests and religious during those hard years, and of the generous and self-sacrificing efforts of a laity, for the most part poor in material means but deeply appreciative of the spiritual resources provided for them.

We thank God for the progress that has been made since the Catholic Church in Scotland once more resumed its old position with its own established Hierarchy. We thank Him for the blessings of this past century. We pray that with the passing years, the mutual trust and affection that has been a happy feature in the relationship between the bishops, priests, religious and laity in Scotland may never weaken but rather increase as we more clearly understand our unity of purpose in the People of God.

✠ GORDON J. CARD. GRAY,
Archbishop of St. Andrews and Edinburgh.

I

FROM THE EXTINCTION OF THE HIERARCHY IN 1603 TILL ITS RESTORATION IN 1878

The ancient hierarchy ended with James Beaton, archbishop of Glasgow, who died at Paris on the 24th April, 1603, aged 86. After being subjected to the jurisdiction of the archpriests and first vicar apostolic of England till 1623, and afterwards to local prefects of the mission, the clergy were incorporated into a missionary body by decree of Congregation de propaganda fide, 13th October 1653.

PREFECTS APOSTOLIC

1. William Ballantine: born 1618, son of Thomas Ballantine (or Bannatine), minister of North Berwick, and Margaret Cockburn; brought up as a Presbyterian in Douglas where his father was incumbent from June 1621; educated University of Edinburgh (matriculated 1635, but left without graduating, presumably in 1636); received into Catholic Church, probably at Paris, date unknown; entered Scots College, Rome, to study for priesthood, 1641, and took the oath, 1st November; "factus ob infirmitatem citius sacerdos," 3rd December 1645; left the College, 15th March 1646; prefect of studies at Scots College, Paris; arrived in Scotland, 1649; appointed prefect, 13th October 1653; arrested at Rye, Sussex, England, September 1656, imprisoned until July 1658, released on personal order of the Protector, Oliver Cromwell, with a gift of £60 to take him to France; returned to Scotland, 18th May 1660; died at Elgin, 2nd September 1661, and is buried in the Huntly aisle, Elgin Cathedral, Moray; author of A preparation for death or, The practice of dying well (2nd edition, 1715).

Dates of events which occurred in Scotland before 1752 are given in Old Style while those which took place in European countries before 1752 are expressed in New Style. Consecrations qualified by the phrase "in secret" are those for which extraordinary measures were taken to conceal both the event and the news that it had taken place.

2. Alexander Dunbar (or Winchester): born at Garmouth, Moray, c. 1625 [parents' names unknown but a Nicholas Dunbar, merchant of Moray, was included in the list of Catholics in Prefect Ballantine's report to Propaganda, 1660]; entered Scots College, Rome, to study for priesthood, 27th May 1651; ordained priest, 21st May 1656; left College, 1657 [at a meeting of Propaganda, 3rd September 1657, described as a member of Scots College in Rome who had just finished his studies]; appointed prefect, 12th June 1662; school with 60 pupils established on Skye, c. 1663, by Ewen McAllister, schoolmaster, but subsequently driven out and re-established with 24 pupils in Glen Garry, 1665; absent in France, 1668-1672, during which period John Walker substituted as prefect but was not formally appointed as such by Propaganda; apostolic visitation of Scotland by Alexander Leslie, 1677-1680, with report submitted to Propaganda, January 1681; proposed by John Leyburne, vicar apostolic of England, to Propaganda as bishop for Scotland, 19th February 1686; resigned July 1697; died at Banff, 14th January 1708, and is buried in St. Ninian's churchyard, Tynet, Moray.

In practice the prefecture apostolic covered only the Scots-speaking parts of the country. From 1612 to 1647 Gaelic-speaking Catholics in the Hebrides and Western Highlands of Scotland were ministered to by priests from the Irish Franciscan mission who were formally commissioned in this work by Urban VIII on 4th September 1623. At first they worked from the Irish Franciscan College of St. Anthony, Leuven, Belgium, but in 1626 they were granted as their headquarters the friary at Bonamargy, County Antrim, Ireland, traditional burial place of the MacDonnells of Antrim, descendants of the Lords of the Isles. The Irish spoken by these missionaries was understood by the people of the Highlands and Islands. The most effective period of their work was during the years 1624-1637. Although Patrick Hegarty worked from Bonamargy as prefect of this mission from 1631 to 1647, he did not visit Scotland during this period and the priest who spent the greatest number of years on the mission was Patrick Brady who laboured, chiefly in Sutherland, from 1619 to 1637. The last priest to leave was Cornelius Ward in the summer of 1637. Although the mission was formally re-established on 22nd January 1647 under Edmund McCann, no details of this new enterprise have come down to us and there is no evidence that any missionaries ever reached the Highlands and Islands.

Further attempts to carry on this mission were made by the Vincenians of whom the best known is Francis White, "a truly Apostolic man," who was sent to Scotland by St. Vincent de Paul in 1654 and who worked in the West Highlands until his death on 28th January 1679. On 20th April 1665 and 20th September 1666 Propaganda in Congregation considered requests from the prefect, Alexander Dunbar, that Irish-speaking priests should again be sent to the Highlands. It was eventually decided by Propaganda that a separate prefect apostolic for the Highlands and Islands should be provided and, on 17th September 1669, St. Oliver Plunkett, nominated only two months earlier to the archbishopric of Armagh, Ireland, was appointed additionally to this office and continued in it until his martyrdom in 1681.

THE VICARS APOSTOLIC OF SCOTLAND

I: 1694-1727

The report on the state of the Mission requested in 1677 by Propaganda, prepared by Alexander Leslie and presented by him to the Congregation in January 1681, recommended, inter alia, the appointment of a general superior for Scotland, with authority over both seculars and regulars. At their meeting on 4th March 1681, Propaganda accepted most of Leslie's proposals but took no action on the nomination of a bishop. However, the disarray in which the Church in Scotland found itself after the "Glorious Revolution" of November-December 1688 and the subsequent triumph, by the settlement of 7th June 1690, of presbyterianism over episcopalianism as the form of Church government in Scotland confirmed the need among Catholics for a single episcopal superior towards whom all could look for leadership and support.

On 16th March 1694 Innocent XII approved the establishment of a vicariate apostolic for Scotland under a titular bishop (APF Acta (1694) vol 64 fo 37v) and on 27th July 1694 Thomas Nicolson's name was proposed by Propaganda in Congregation for the appointment ["per tale Ministerio D. Tomaso Nicolson, sacerdote scozzese antico e benemerito Missionario il quale ha qualità, dottrina e costumi ecclesiastici com'è stato rappresentato più particolarmente all'Em. Prefetto"] (APF Acta (1694) vol 64 fo 130v/131r). On 24th August 1694 Innocent XII approved the appointment of Thomas Nicolson as first vicar apostolic.

3. John Wallace: born at Arbroath, c. 1650, son of Patrick Wallace, town councillor [mother's name unknown]; [the Wallace family played a leading part in the affairs of Arbroath in the 17th and 18th centuries, and many with the name of Patrick Wallace were provost; they were, in religion, Episcopalian; politically, Jacobites; in trade, tobacco and linen merchants with a taste for smuggling]; brought up as an Episcopalian and licensed to preach and baptise in Episcopalian ministry; tutor to children of Earl of Perth; received into Catholic Church, c. 1686; in exile after Revolution with Jacobite court at St. Germain-en-Laye; private almoner to James VII; retired to live at Scots College, Paris; was persuaded by Bishop James Gordon to return with him to Scotland, July 1706; ordained at Preshome, 3rd April 1708; missionary at Arbroath; in February 1709 the Presbytery of Arbroath recorded that "popery was prevailing in Arbroath, by the industry of Mr. John Wallace, and by reason of his interest in the place and in the country about" and he was therefore summoned to the justiciary court at Perth, 1709, for apostasy and for trafficking and perverting but did not appear and was outlawed; consecrated titular bishop of Cyrrhus and coadjutor vicar apostolic by James Gordon, titular bishop of Nicopolis and vicar apostolic of Scotland, assisted by Alexander Drummond, priest, and James Carnegie, priest, in secret at Edinburgh, 21st September 1720; arrested Edinburgh, 1722, and again outlawed; died at Edinburgh, 30th June 1733 [place of burial unknown].

II: 1727-1827

On 23rd July 1727 Scotland was divided into two vicariates, the Lowland and Highland Districts. Alexander John Grant was nominated titular bishop of Sura and vicar apostolic, Highland District, 6th August 1727. He was born at Wester Boggs, Enzie, Banffshire, c. 1693, son of Peter Grant and Ann Reid, and elder brother of James Grant (see (5) below); entered Scots College, Rome, 2nd April 1711, aged 17; ordained priest [sub-deacon, 18th December 1717, but dates of diaconate and priesthood not traced]; left the College, 5th June 1719; at Scots College, Paris, July 1719 to July 1721; arrived in Scotland, August 1721; and was superior at Scalán, 1721-1726. In anticipation of his appointment he went to Rome for consecration and, although he was duly elected by Propaganda on 17th December 1726, there was, for a number of reasons, a delay of some seven months before this was approved by Benedict XIII on 6th August 1727. Whether on advice or from natural frustration is not clear but, in any event, Grant decided to return to Scotland. He was last heard from in a letter dated 28th December 1727, seriously ill and living in great poverty in Genoa. It is presumed that he died there since no further trace of him has been discovered.

A successor was not appointed until 20th January 1731 when Hugh MacDonald was provided to the Highland District. The brief dated 12th February 1731 issued by Clement XII approving this nomination contained a clause empowering Bishops Gordon and MacDonald to define the limits of their respective Districts. This was done at a bishops' meeting in Edinburgh in October 1731 following Bishop MacDonald's consecration and was formally ratified by Propaganda in Congregation on 7th January 1732. The division was made on a basic recognition of the linguistic and cultural differences which separated the two peoples of Scotland at that time. In general terms, the two Districts were divided along a line which may be thought of as running from Dumbarton to Nairn, with the Scots-speaking area to the south and east comprising the Lowland District and the Gaelic-speaking area to the north and west in the Highland District, but with a number of localities where each overlapped the other.

A map showing the division in these terms appears in The Innes Review, xvii (1966), 130.

FROM THE RESTORATION OF THE HIERARCHY IN 1878 TO THE PRESENT DAY

The Apostolic Letter "Ex Supremo Apostolatus Apice" of Leo XIII, 4th March 1878, divided Scotland into the Province of St. Andrews and Edinburgh (with four Suffragan Sees) and the Archdiocese of Glasgow, which was directly subject to the Holy See. By the Apostolic Constitution "Maxime Interest" of Pius XII, 25th May 1947, and the Apostolic Constitution "Dominici Gregis" of the same date, the Archdiocese of Glasgow was erected into a Province and divided into the Metropolitan See of Glasgow with the Suffragan Sees of Motherwell and Paisley.

A pamphlet entitled Diocesan Map of Scotland, showing maps of each of the dioceses of Scotland, was published by The Mercat Cross in 1953.

THE PROVINCE OF ST. ANDREWS AND EDINBURGH

OBITUARIES — 1977

Reverend James Corrigan — 2nd December, 1976

Father Jim Corrigan was a priest we could ill afford to lose. Over three years ago when he wrote to the late Archbishop Scanlan asking permission to apply for the Missions, the Archbishop wrote back to him saying that Glasgow needed priests like Jim Corrigan, but he would not stand in his way, and wished him every blessing in his future missionary work. Archbishop Scanlan kept up contact with Father Jim, even after his retiral. The late Archbishop was a shrewd judge of character.

James Patrick Corrigan was born on 16th June, 1937, in Parkhead. His parents came from Co. Fermanagh. His father found work with Beardmore's, and so Mr. and Mrs. Corrigan's first home was in Parkhead. It was in St. Michael's that Jim Corrigan was baptized. His father's work then took him to Dalmuir when Jim was three years old. They set up home in Kimberley Street, which was then in St. Stephen's parish. His younger brother Frank and his mother's two sisters, Kathleen and Agnes, were a very close family. The faith was strong in that family. After receiving his primary education in St. Stephen's, he went to Blairs College. From there to Darleith and Kilmahew. On 29th June, 1961, he was ordained priest by Archbishop Campbell in St. Andrew's Cathedral.

His first appointment was to St. Luke's. This appointment lasted only two months. After this "one for the road" appointment, he was sent to St. Columba's. He spent eight happy years in St. Columba's. Tragedy struck his family on 19th January, 1970, when his mother died. It is very hard for any priest when his mother dies; it is doubly so when she dies still a relatively young woman. It was shortly after this that he was moved to St. Robert's, Househillwood. Tragedy struck again in June of that year, when his father died. No words can express what he went through. He spent the next four years in St. Robert's.

As a priest working in the Glasgow Archdiocese, he was an asset both in the chapel house and in the parish. He was the kind of priest that both priests and people like to have. His freshness of complexion portrayed his freshness and exuberance towards people. He liked people and not ideas. He got involved in the human situation. Basically a very humble person, he did not suffer from the malaise of the "Messiah syndrome." He did not approach life with the mentality that this or that situation is bad; or things have not been done right in the past, however, here I am, I have arrived, I will put everything right. He approached his work as a priest in a quiet, unassuming way, he had no bees in his bonnet, a mark of real humility. I recall with a smile, coming back from Troon, and asking Jim for some ideas as I had a Legion meeting that night. He said that the best allocation he ever gave was on humility! The old Latin tag, "In medio stat virtus," sums up his life to a tee. (I think Jim the golfer would appreciate that subtle reference!)

Even before his parents died, Jim Corrigan had a leaning towards the Missions. During the early '70s it began to become more definite and concrete. He did not have any grandiose ideas of preaching to the clamouring millions hungry for the Word of God. Simply, he thought that there was a great shortage of priests in South America. He talked things over with Father Desmond Gunning when he was home on holiday. After a lot of thought and prayer, he decided to write to Archbishop Scanlan, and take it from there—the digitus Dei approach—if God wants me to go, the Bishop won't say "No." When the answer came back within a few days, it took him a little aback. From what he had heard, he thought you had to fight your way out to the Missions! In March 1974 he was leaving Prestwick Airport via Boston to Lima to attend the language school. After three months of eating, drinking and sleeping Spanish, he was appointed to Santa Cruz in Bolivia, where he made up a team of three priests. He brought his own quiet charm with him, and quietly got along with his work. Because of the poverty of the people, the idea of a clinic evolved. Although he never saw its completion, the clinic is now functioning well.

In the following year, 1975, he came back to Scotland on holiday. He found that the St. James' Missionary Society had deepened his appreciation of the priesthood. As one of the St. James' Society priests said when addressing the Glasgow clergy at Bearsden, "we are asked to share our priesthood with others in South America;" this is what Jim Corrigan was doing.

At the beginning of 1976, an ulcer began to act up. The doctor in Bolivia told him he had to rest. So in March he came back to convalesce. While at home, a specialist advised him that an operation would make a new man of him. The operation in the Royal Infirmary was a complete success. Whether he hurried his recovery after the operation or not, we shall never know. In June, he was back in Santa Cruz.

In the early hours of Thursday, 2nd December, 1976, he woke up with severe pains across his chest. Father John Hendricks, his fellow priest, called the nurse and doctor. The doctor ordered him to be taken immediately to hospital. At around 7.30 that same morning, he took another seizure and died. The people in Santa Cruz could not believe the young happy priest was dead.

Fathers Dennis Dever (Superior), David McLachlan, John Hendricks and Dick Ahern, all of the St. James' Society, brought the body of Jim Corrigan home to Glasgow. Together with us, they felt that Glasgow and the St. James' Society had lost a very good priest. Our way is not God's way, but it makes you think . . . and pray.

The Requiem Mass was celebrated in St. Robert's on Tuesday, 7th December, and he was buried in St. Kentigern's Cemetery. May he rest in peace.

Very Reverend John Joseph Canon Donnelly — 30th December, 1976

Canon John Donnelly, parish priest of Armadale, died suddenly on 30th December, 1976, in the 69th year of his age and the 45th of his priesthood. At the funeral Mass in the Sacred Heart Church, Armadale, on 3rd January, 1977, prior to the interment at Bathgate, the following panegyric was delivered by His Eminence Cardinal Gordon Joseph Gray, Archbishop of St. Andrews and Edinburgh:

Tomorrow, Edinburgh-born Father John Donnelly was to have been installed as a Canon of the Cathedral Chapter of this Archdiocese of St. Andrews and Edinburgh. I was looking forward to the ceremony. It was an honour recommended by the present members of the Chapter, not simply by reason of his seniority, but even more by reason of the sterling work he had done quietly and unobtrusively in the diocese, since his ordination on 13th November, 1932 in the Lateran Seminary Chapel in Rome. His ordination—ten years after his entry to Blairs College as a lad of fifteen; after his years of training in spirituality as well as in philosophy and theology at the Scots College in Rome. Then—as throughout his priestly life—a hard-working, serious student—no ambitions except to be a good priest and give his life to service and sacrifice for God and the People of God.

He was a man of no small intellectual ability. He served only one year as curate in Stirling before being appointed a Professor to Blairs College—where he served for eight years—to help train the priests of the future, not only in Latin and Greek, but by example in the qualities a priest requires.

Someone defined a Seminary as a place where our future priests learn priestly virtues from the example of priests. Certainly none of the young aspirants to the priesthood who were formed by John Donnelly's example, saw in him anything but dedication, service and the highest ideals. His spell of teaching over, he returned in 1941 to his Diocese to serve as curate in Kirkcaldy and Broxburn until his appointment, fifteen years after ordination, as parish priest in Armadale. Armadale, his one and only parish.

I think John would have liked me to say a word about his parish. Not only because he loved it so greatly but because it was he who gave it what for so long its parishioners had prayed. A real church. Armadale had begun in 1905 as a twin parish with Blackburn, mothered from Bathgate. In 1907 it became a separate parish and for some years served Blackburn—and as its parish church had—from that same year—a new chapel-school that could boast its claim to be the biggest of such a type in Scotland. Its seven classrooms, so it was said, held 1,200 people. But before Father John came in 1947, the Parish had acquired the old hall and presbytery. I remember it so well—from the first occasion when I came to Armadale for Confirmations. Everything arranged so beautifully—but Father John not to be seen in the little sanctuary. Instead there he was, seated at the harmonium, playing and leading the singing with such enthusiasm as he always tried to do. A great priest, a great musician, a great worker, a great Roman, a great enthusiast and a great tactician! I think of how he pleaded the cause of his parishioners for their new church at a time when still, for financial reasons, our policy had to be—"provided you have four walls and a roof, you are well off." First the presbytery was built. Its building wasn't his choice, his priority. It was a diocesan decision. For the old presbytery was damp and required extensive repairs. John had acquired the site. He spoke of a caravan in the grounds so that the church might be built first. We disagreed. So—after the presbytery came the church. Work began but for a time it seemed he would not see its opening. He had a massive thrombosis and for some days, his recovery was in doubt. But, thanks to the superb skill of the medical team in the Western General Hospital in Edinburgh, he survived. Then—another setback. When the church was nearing completion the firm went into liquidation and work was held up for the best part of a year. But, at last, in 1974 the new church was formally opened and Father Donnelly was content.

His health had had its ups and downs during the past fifteen years and more. But—he carried on without complaint. To the very end he was a great, a model priest, dedicated, deeply concerned for the spiritual welfare of his people—and especially the old, the sick and the children. Always approachable, always sympathetic and always full of understanding. A good friend, a wise counsellor and a man who had his priorities right. And his first priority—his relationship through prayer with the Lord into whose service he had entered as a priest 45 years before.

We shall miss him greatly and sadly. A man on whom one could utterly depend through thick and thin. We shall miss him—myself, his brother priests—and you his parishioners, for whom he lived and laboured here for well nigh 30 years. May God speedily reward his labours and take him to the joys prepared for him.

I offer my deep sympathy to his relations and to Miss Gilfeather who worked as his housekeeper for many long years. And, above all, to his curate and trusted colleague, than whom none could have offered greater loyalty—I mean, Father Tom Hennessy. I never worried over much about the parish when Father John was unwell. I knew I could rely on Father Hennessy to whom, this morning, I say—"Thank you, Father Tom. Not only did I rely on you. So too, as you well know, did Father Donnelly and the Catholics of Armadale."

We say farewell. But ours is a parting with a prayer. The prayer that whatever—and we are all frail and human—whatever his shortcomings may have been—may God already have forgotten them and forgiven them and said those welcoming words:

"Well done—good and faithful servant,
Enter into the joys prepared for you."

May he rest in peace.

Reverend James Coyle — 25th February, 1977

James Coyle was born in Ayr on 24th February, 1919. He entered Blairs College in 1933 and after completing his Secondary education he was transferred in 1936 to Le Grand Seminaire, Coutances in Normandy. This was a French Diocesan Seminary but Scottish students had been sent there since just after the 1914-18 war. At this time there were about a dozen Scottish and two English students for the Diocese of Southwark. The link with Scotland and this French Seminary was broken by the outbreak of the last war. These were happy and relatively carefree years for him. Normally he would have completed his studies there but at the start of the war in 1939 the college building was taken over by the military and the Scottish students were dispersed to various colleges in Ireland. He and two other students went to St. Patrick's College, Thurles, where he completed his studies. Too young to be ordained with the rest of his class in 1941, he was ordained in St. Andrew's, Dumfries, by the late Bishop Mellon on 4th April, 1942.

His first appointment was to St. Francis Xavier's, Waterside, where he remained until he was transferred to St. Joseph's, Stranraer, in 1942. He remained there until 1949, but in fact much of his priestly life was to be spent in this parish. In 1949 he was appointed to St. Ann's, Annbank, as assistant to the ageing Canon Nicholas Murphy, but his stay here was to be short and indeed part of that time was spent in hospital and in convalescence after a rather serious motor cycle accident.

In 1950 he entered a new sphere of activity away from parish life when he was appointed Chaplain to St. Joseph's College, Dumfries. He is still fondly remembered by many past students of the College now scattered throughout Britain and beyond these shores. While at the College he also acted as official Chaplain to H.M. Prison in Dumfries.

His first appointment as parish priest was to St. Joseph's, Stranraer, in 1958. He remained in Stranraer for eight years. He was a good mixer, made many friends with people of all creeds and none, and was respected by all. During his stay there he was a member of Wigtownshire Education Committee and it was from this committee that he was appointed a Governor of Notre Dame College of Education. He was responsible for many improvements to both Church and house, but as always his chief concern was the pastoral care of the people entrusted to him.

In 1966, he was appointed parish priest of St. Mary's, Saltcoats. This was a new experience for him. Up till now all his parochial work had been in relatively small parishes, even as a curate. St. Mary's was, by our standards, a big and fairly highly organised parish. Here was a new way of life for him but he entered into it with his usual enthusiasm and cheerfulness. The house was old and in much need of attention. He was responsible for its complete renovation but he did not remain long to enjoy the comfort of it. He felt that the life style of a big parish was not suited to his temperament and at his own request he was moved to a smaller parish. He went to Muirkirk in 1970 and spent the next five years there, as always, integrating easily into this closely knit and friendly community.

He went to St. Patrick's, Auchinleck, in 1975 and would have been happy to stay there for many years. As it happened, his time there was to be all too short, just a little over a year.

His final illness was brief. For some days he had been feeling unwell but he just carried on working as usual, until Ash Wednesday when he called in the doctor who at once had him admitted to Ballochmyle Hospital. At first there appeared to be no cause for concern, but on the day after admission he had a relapse and died on Friday, 25th February. The priests of the Diocese concelebrated the Requiem Mass with Bishop McGee in St. Patrick's, Auchinleck, on 1st March and he was laid to rest in the local cemetery. He is survived by his sister May, who lives in Ayr. They were very devoted to each other.

James was a bright, intelligent and straightforward man. I don't think he was ever bothered with any crisis of identity that we hear so much about today. He was just himself, James Coyle, the priest. He had a zest for life and a love of laughter. He could laugh readily with others and on occasions he could laugh at himself. He was more interested in people than in things and theories. He loved company and above all he loved the company of his fellow priests. Whenever there was a gathering of clergy we could be sure that we would hear his booming voice proclaim, "It's great to meet the Clergy," and he spoke from the heart. He has now gone to share in the company of the Great High Priest whom he tried so earnestly to serve. May he rest in peace.

Reverend James McHugh — 9th March, 1977

Father James McHugh was born in Stevenston on 3rd April, 1935, and died in Ayrshire Central Hospital, Irvine, on 9th March, 1977.

The sudden death of Father James McHugh was a great loss to the Diocese of Galloway, and brought deep sorrow to his family and friends. His Lordship, Bishop Joseph McGee, with a great number of priests from the west and east of Scotland, concelebrated the Funeral Mass in St. Palladius' Church, Dalry, on 14th March, with laity gathered from all the parishes where Father McHugh had faithfully carried out his priestly duties.

After completing his early education at St. John's, Stevenston, James McHugh attended St. Michael's College, Irvine, before going to Blairs College in August, 1947. Both his parents, who had come from Ireland and settled in Stevenston, had died before young James started out on his way to the priesthood. From Blairs he proceeded to St. Andrew's College, Drygrange in 1953, the year when this new major seminary was opened by Archbishop Gordon Joseph Gray. Six years later, on 14th March, 1959, Father James McHugh was ordained in his home parish of St. John's, Stevenston, by Bishop Joseph McGee.

His first appointment was to St. Teresa's, Dumfries, and then he went to St. John's, Cumnock for a short time. In 1962 Father McHugh was sent on loan to the Archdiocese of St. Andrews and Edinburgh. He served in the parish of St. Columba and also in St. Catherine's. On his return to Galloway in 1965, he was assistant at St. Joseph's, Kilmarnock until 1967, when he was transferred to St. Mary's, Irvine. In 1971 Father McHugh was appointed parish priest of Lockerbie and Moffat, and in April 1976, he moved to St. Palladius', Dalry as parish priest.

Throughout his priestly ministry Father McHugh worked for his people and looked after them with great kindness, especially in time of sickness or trouble. At all times he was available to people wherever he could be of help whether to young or old. He liked to have company around him, and many of his younger parishioners will remember him with gratitude for his enthusiasm and energy in helping and encouraging them in their various projects. He also had a fine sense of poverty, and a readiness to help the poor and those less fortunate in life. During his time at Lockerbie, he carried out the renovation of the Church of St. Luke at Moffat. Soon after this, (in Lockerbie itself) in 1973, the diocese procured the beautiful Church of the Holy Trinity from the Church of Scotland to replace the small building which had served them well for so many years. Again Father McHugh and his parishioners soon accomplished the work of interior renovation and adaptation that was required. It was a day of great joy and happiness when Bishop McGee, Father McHugh, visiting priests and local ministers gathered together with the people for a service of dedication.

Unknown to anyone, Father McHugh's health had been declining for a considerable time before Christmas, 1976 when signs of ill health made themselves evident. He was taken to the Southern General Hospital in Glasgow for investigation. After examinations and treatment, he was discharged and told to take things easy for a time. Quite unexpectedly he had to be removed to Irvine Hospital on Sunday, 6th March, and died there on Wednesday, 9th March.

He had done the work allotted to him by his Master who now took him to himself. Father McHugh was buried in Dalry cemetery on 14th March, 1977, the eighteenth anniversary of his ordination. May he rest in peace.

John Patrick McAveety was born at Snowdon Street in the Hutchesontown district of Glasgow on 6th November, 1930, but was brought up in Springburn. Having evinced a desire to study for the priesthood, he entered St. Mary's College, Blairs, in 1945. After gaining his Leaving Certificate, he was sent to Rome in 1950 to undertake his study of philosophy and theology at the Pontifical Scots College and the Pontifical Gregorian University. He was successful in his studies and graduated as a Licentiate both in Philosophy and Sacred Theology. In those days it was the custom of the Scots College that the Decano, and sometimes the Sub-Decano as well, would be ordained at the end of their penultimate year of study. So John McAveety, being Decano, was raised to the priesthood on 8th July, 1956, in the Church of the Twelve Apostles, Rome, by the Most Reverend Ettore Cunial, titular Archbishop of Soteropolis and second Vice-gerent of Rome.

On his return to Glasgow in the following year, Father McAveety was asked to undertake further study at the University of Glasgow, and was appointed to St. Paul's, Whiteinch. After a year, however, he asked to be allowed to devote himself entirely to parish work, and was transferred to St. Constantine's in Govan. He served in this large and busy parish, with no fewer than four hospitals to attend to, for five years, when his health began to give cause for anxiety. He was transferred to the parish of Our Lady of the Assumption in Ruchill in 1963, a smaller and rather less busy parish. His condition did not improve and in 1965 he had to leave the active ministry for some two years until, in 1967, he was able to resume his priestly work in Our Lady of Consolation, Govanhill. This was a parish only one year old, and used a converted cinema for its church until the new church was opened in 1971. Father McAveety had his part to play in the building up of the new parochial community and in seeing it housed in its own purpose-built place of worship.

Early in 1973, it became necessary to give Father McAveety the benefit of a less urban setting for his ministry, and he received his last appointment, to St. Michael's, Dumbarton. Here he carried out his duties diligently, in church and school, in convent and hospital, in presbytery living and parish visiting.

It was in the presbytery that the call came suddenly, very suddenly, in the evening of Tuesday, 22nd March, 1977. A massive heart-attack came over him; he had but the strength to summon a colleague and ask for the sacraments. He received them and within minutes had gone to meet the Master whose priest he had been for more than twenty years. He was only forty-six when he died.

The funeral took place three days later, on 25th March, the Solemnity of the Annunciation, when Archbishop Winning of Glasgow was the principal celebrant at the Mass in St. Michael's, concelebrated by at least a hundred priests and attended by many more, with a large congregation, including people from Springburn and Govanhill. Many of these accompanied the cortège to the Priests' Plot in St. Kentigern's Cemetery, Lambhill, where the Archbishop conducted the interment of all that was mortal of John Patrick McAveety, priest. May he rest in peace.

Very Reverend John Bernard Provost Malloy — 28th March, 1977

John Bernard Malloy was born, the son of John J. Malloy and Essie Fairley at Dundee on 15th August, 1900, and was baptized by Right Reverend Joseph Provost Holder, V.G., in the parish Church of St. Joseph. At the time of his death on 28th March, 1977, he had not only been parish priest of the same parish of St. Joseph for almost quarter of a century but had also succeeded to the Provostship of the Cathedral Chapter of Dunkeld.

After primary education in the parish school, he entered Blairs in August, 1913. The progress of his education, however, was to be disturbed by his being called up for service during the closing months of the First World War. When the war ended, he was at sea aboard a merchant ship, serving in the capacity of a radio operator and this circumstance delayed his entry into St. Peter's College, New Kilpatrick, until September, 1919.

In October of the following year he was transferred to the Pontifical Scots College, Rome, and, in the fullness of time, he received priestly ordination in the Basilica of St. John Lateran on 27th February, 1926 at the hands of Basil Pompilj, Cardinal Bishop of Velletri and Vicar-General of His Holiness.

On his return to Scotland, more than two years were to pass before he was to take up service in his native Diocese. Initially, he was on loan to St. Andrew's, Rothesay, for about a year, and then spent a few months in St. Patrick's, Edinburgh, before he was appointed in 1929 to a curacy in St. Mary's, Forebank, Dundee. He remained in that parish until his appointment in 1940 as parish priest of St. Fillan's, Newport, wherein he served also the Church of Our Lady, Star of the Sea, Tayport, and the Royal Air Force Station at Leuchars.

In the late summer of 1952, Father Malloy's native parish became vacant as a result of the nomination of the Right Reverend Joseph Canon McGee, V.G., to the See of Galloway. Father Malloy was appointed to succeed him and was nominated parish priest of St. Joseph's and Canon of the Cathedral Church by Apostolic Briefs, dated 5th December, 1952. On the death of Right Reverend John Provost Coogan, of St. John's, Perth, in 1971, Canon Malloy became the Provost of the Cathedral Chapter.

The brief account of the principal events of John Malloy's life does him little justice. His whole life was an act of affection for the people whom he was privileged to serve. His care for the aged and the sick, for those in any trouble or distress, was matched by a willingness to nurture by kindness, the faith and the enthusiasm of the younger members of his flock. His concern for and generosity towards the needy, was proverbial among not only those who deserved to be the objects of his kindness but equally among those whose need might have been the subject of closer scrutiny. He could turn no one away empty handed or heavy hearted. He grew graciously into old age and at the time of his death his library was eloquent witness of his willingness to try to keep abreast of every change and movement in the Church. If at times he seemed a little bewildered by what he saw about him, he never made this a cause for rancour but rather the motive for further thought and effort.

His death came suddenly and, as he would have wished, in the midst of multifarious pastoral tasks. He was found to be in great pain on the morning of Sunday, 27th March, and was unable to say Mass. With reluctance he allowed a doctor to be called and was taken to Ninewells Hospital. During the few hours he spent there, he prayerfully prepared himself to meet his Master with a good heart. He died in the course of an emergency operation in the early hours of 28th March.

The vast numbers of people who attended his funeral Mass were a demonstration of the love in which he was held. The Bishop of Dunkeld, the Right Reverend William Andrew Hart, his lifelong friend, offered the Mass and spoke eloquently of the Canon's life and virtues. He was accompanied in the celebration by the Canon's immediate predecessor, the Bishop of Galloway, by his cousin, the Claustal Prior of Downside, the Very Reverend Dom Ninian Fair, O.S.B., and by almost every priest of the Diocese of Dunkeld. His sisters and other members of his family were joined in their sorrow by representatives of the District and Regional Councils of the area and of many aspects of the life and City of Dundee, not least among whom were members of other Churches. A company of such distinction at his funeral Mass would have come as a surprise to the Canon. He would have wondered why such tribute was being paid to him for, above all else, he was always a man of the deepest humility. There are many priests and people alike who miss him deeply. May he rest in peace.

Reverend John McCallum — 14th April, 1977

Father John McCallum, retired parish priest of Whitburn, died in Denny on 14th April, 1977, in the 63rd year of his age and the 39th of his priesthood. At the funeral Mass in St. Alexander's, Denny, prior to the interment at Denny, the following panegyric was delivered by Right Reverend Mgr. Patrick Grady, V.G.:

The Reverend John McCallum was born in Denny on 19th August, 1914. He entered Blairs College in 1926 and went to the Scots College in Rome in 1931.

He was ordained priest by Archbishop Traglia in St. John Lateran's on the 16th April, 1938. He was one of 29 priests ordained that year for Scottish dioceses, of whom ten were for the Archdiocese of St. Andrews and Edinburgh. John McCallum is the first to go to his eternal reward.

On his return to Edinburgh from Rome he held curacy appointments at St. Columba's, Edinburgh (October, 1938), Bathgate, St. Mary's (1939), Dunfermline, St. Margaret's (March, 1941), Kirkcaldy, St. Marie's (September, 1943), Edinburgh, St. Ninian's (September, 1944). He was appointed parish priest of Slamannan in September, 1947. He went to Stoneyburn in November, 1953 and became parish priest of Whitburn in September, 1961. He retired from active work in November, 1972 and went to St. Mary's, Lanark. However, he was most anxious to spend his remaining days in his birthplace—Denny, and for the past three years he has resided, very carefully looked after, by his devoted sister in Denny. He died on Thursday of last week—a week after he had said Mass for the last time on Holy Thursday. The words of Christ can be fittingly applied to him “I shall not drink of the cup until I do so in the Kingdom of my Father.”

John McCallum was completely devoid of any worldly ambition and was fully content to be a priest among the people. I need not remind you that all during his life he was plagued with ill-health which prevented him from doing many things that a healthy person can undertake with impunity. He was a simple person in the sense that he was trusting of others and did not judge their motives or their actions. The extent to which he contributed towards community healing in Whitburn has not been fully appreciated. Nowadays we take ecumenical matters for granted. It is not always easy to produce a spirit of co-operation between communities whose distinct traditions have been sharply delineated for a long time. Father McCallum was immensely successful in producing a spirit of co-operation among Catholics and non-Catholics.

If we are blessed with reasonable health it is difficult to appreciate the cross that persistently and increasingly intense ill-health forces us to bear. Father McCallum bore his ill-health patiently and undemandingly, especially during the last three years of his life when he was cared for by his sister.

To her and her family, to his other sister and his two brothers and to his housekeeper of former years—Mary O'Donnell—we extend our thanks and our deep sympathy. May he rest in peace.

Reverend Michael J. Sullivan — 12th May, 1977

The news of the sudden and untimely death of Father Michael J. Sullivan in the afternoon of Thursday, 12th May, sent shock waves through not only the community of Motherwell and the diocese, but for many miles around. A sense of personal loss was deeply felt by one and all, young and old. Slowly and painfully we came to realise that this hard-working, zealous and true priest was no longer among us.

Father Sullivan was born on 28th February, 1930, at Denbawn, Carrickaboy, Co. Cavan. He attended the local National School before going on to St. Patrick's College, Cavan, where he completed his secondary course. Coming as he did from a conscientious and God-fearing family, with his uncle a priest in the Archdiocese of Dublin and many others of his relations in the religious life, it came as no surprise when Michael expressed the desire to pursue further studies for the priesthood. He entered St. Patrick's College, Carlow, in September 1949, and was ordained a priest there on 5th June, 1955, by the Bishop of Kildare and Leighlin, Most Rev. Thomas Keogh, D.D. His sincere and cheerful manner made him very popular with the staff and students; characteristics which were evident throughout his life.

All his priestly life was spent in the Diocese of Motherwell. His first appointment was to the parish of St. Mary, Larkhall, albeit a very temporary supply. Nevertheless, those first weeks he remembered vividly. It was with great joy and satisfaction that he spoke often of those happy days. There was nothing temporary about his next appointment. St. Mungo's, Garthamlock, was then a newly created parish, in a new housing scheme within the confines of Glasgow city. The late Father John V. Murray was parish priest and Father Sullivan was sent there as his assistant. For the next twelve years he gave himself wholeheartedly and unreservedly to the developing and building up of this parish. Life was far from easy. The people themselves had to adjust to a whole new way of life. They had come from the city where they were used to easy access to their places of work and shopping. They had been members of old and well established parishes with all the grand traditions of parochial life.

For the priests it was a question of beginning at the foundations. No one was more conscious of this than Father Sullivan. He was meticulous in his visitation of the homes and his caring for all. The aged and infirm and the sick in hospitals got his full attention.

He set up a number of Societies and Sodalities catering for all ages, such as the Young Men's Society and the Women's Sacred Heart Sodality. He never tired of speaking about the youth, and in particular, his Boys' Guild. Their achievements on the football field and the many boys who went on to gain honours with senior teams up and down the country gave him great pleasure and satisfaction. The people of St. Mungo's took him to their hearts and always spoke of him as "our own Father Sullivan."

On 1st September, 1967, he was transferred to the old and revered parish of St. Columbkille, Rutherglen. For the next six years in that parish, he carried on his priestly work with the same enthusiasm and diligence, getting to know the people and catering for their spiritual needs. It was during those years that the old parish school was vacated and Father Sullivan spent much time and energy in helping to transform the building into a magnificent parochial hall and social centre.

The remaining years of his life were to be spent not in St. Columbkille's but in the Cathedral parish, Motherwell, to which he was appointed on 28th September, 1973. Once again he entered fully into the running of this central and busy parish. For a number of years he was one of the official Masters of Ceremonies in the diocese, assisting His Lordship the Bishop in many parishes. This he considered a great honour, especially being so deeply involved in all the episcopal ceremonies in the Cathedral.

Always blessed with good health until the last few months of his life, he gave his days for God in his work for others. It seemed fitting, then, that that same life should come to an end while visiting and caring for his parishioners. On 12th May, 1977, outside a multi-storey building where he had been to visit some of his people, he died suddenly.

Bishop Thomson concelebrated the Solemn Mass of Requiem, with Monsignor Conroy, Father Patrick Sullivan and over 100 priests. Many other priests and religious were among the congregation, which also included Father Sullivan's brother, sister and cousins. The Cathedral was filled to capacity with an overflow congregation into the adjacent grounds. All the parishes in which Father Sullivan had been were represented in large numbers.

In his homily, Bishop Thomson paid many glowing tributes to the late Father Sullivan as a priest and for the sterling work which he had done. He pointed out how adequately he had fulfilled the scripture readings of the Mass.

Afterwards the mortal remains of Father Sullivan were laid to rest in the priests' plot in St. Patrick's Cemetery, New Stevenston, where once again Bishop Thomson officiated.

So ended our final farewell for this "sagart aroon," who was taken from among us at the early age of 47 years.

A long life may not be good enough, but a good life is always long enough when we go before almighty God. May Father Michael J. Sullivan not be found wanting. In his native language, may his soul be at God's right hand.

Very Reverend Joseph Provost Byrne — 14th May, 1977

Very Reverend Joseph Byrne, Provost of the Edinburgh Cathedral Chapter and parish priest of St. Marie's, Kirkcaldy, died suddenly in North Berwick on 14th May, 1977, in the 79th year of his age and the 55th of his priesthood. At the funeral Mass in St. Marie's on 18th May, prior to the interment at Kirkcaldy, the following panegyric was delivered by His Eminence Cardinal Gordon Joseph Gray, Archbishop of St. Andrews and Edinburgh:

He was born in January, 1899. Yet to us who knew and loved him, he seemed to be in this life, well nigh immortal. An institution—here in Kirkcaldy and throughout the Kingdom of Fife. No Catholic function was ever complete without his presence. His commitments were many—as parish priest, as Provost of the Metropolitan Chapter of this Archdiocese, as representative for 25 years or more on the education committee for the county and region of Fife, as a member of our diocesan Works and Building committee and of many other committees. He neglected none. Yet, he was always available, always at hand. As the sick in home or in hospital know full well. He was on every priest's guest list for occasions of rejoicing—Jubilees, Church Openings, Centenaries, not just as the Provost representing the Chapter, but as our own Canon Joe Byrne. He was loved by his brother priests. And he loved them in return. In life rejoicing; in death sorrowing and praying. I was close to him for little more than half the years of his priesthood. But over his earlier years, I knew him both by repute and by the chance meetings throughout the parishes of the diocese. Above all at liturgical functions and when a brother priest was laid to rest. The death of a priest was for him a personal loss, and inevitably he was present when a brother in the priesthood was carried to his grave—to show his sorrow and his sympathy by his presence and his prayers.

His presence—with his welcoming friendship, the sincerity of his concern, the warmth of his smile. To me, his Bishop, always a patient listener, a wise counsellor, an enthusiastic co-operator. Never an unkind or critical word passed his lips. Never seeking the limelight, but always ready to channel the credit to others for his own many and lasting achievements. A humble, loveable, fatherly priest, with a reverence for the priesthood that was merely an inheritance derived from the deep faith of his Irish parents and the Catholic tradition of a family whose branches have given at least seven sons to the priesthood. Yes, he inherited a deep faith—and with it, a simple yet profound piety, that found its satisfaction in the old Irish traditional love, the Holy Mass, the Way of the Cross and a devotion to the Mother of God through the Rosary that he prayed three times each day. His—a faith that never questioned, never wavered, never flagged. And a dedication of service to the Catholic Church in this Archdiocese that never wavered, never flagged, despite his love for his homeland and his native Derry.

The Canon was ordained a priest on 22nd October, 1922, after a course of studies that began in St. Columb's, Derry, continued in St. Kieran's, Kilkenny and reached completion with the stay of a few short weeks in St. Peter's, Bearsden. On his ordination day he was little more than 23 years of age, below the canonical age, and it was arranged by the late Bishop Gray Graham that he should spend a year gaining pastoral experience in populous Pollokshaws parish in Glasgow, before coming as curate in September, 1923, to his first appointment at Penicuik, which then served Rosewell. In succession he worked in St. Mary's, Stirling, and in St. Mary's, Bathgate, before being appointed in 1929 as parish priest of Winchburgh. Then three years later he took up residence in the Falkirk presbytery, with the commission to build a house and chapel hall in Larbert, a task he completed in April of 1935. He enjoyed his new church for only two years. In 1937 he went as parish priest to Lochgelly, where his memory is still green, until his appointment in 1939 to St. Marie's, here in Kirkcaldy. From the day of his coming he cherished a great ambition. To build here a Church worthy of Our Blessed Lord and of his Catholic congregation. But the war came and, with it, the suspension of non-essential buildings, a situation that continued into the '50s. However, he acquired St. Columba's in Pratt Road, to ease both travelling and accommodation in St. Marie's. Sketch designs were prepared for St. Marie's. But then came the launching of the extensive housing area in Templehall. A church was essential for the new district. The Canon acquired the site in Brodick Road, plans were drawn up and in 1956 the church of St. Pius X was solemnly blessed and opened. To compensate for the disappointment in yet one more delay in a new mother church, the Canon asked for authority to mark the Centenary of St. Marie's in 1965 by renovating the old church and gave up the hope of seeing, in his lifetime, a new St. Marie's. But, unexpectedly, this splendid building became available, and its acquisition and adaptation was, I am sure, the perfect realization of the Canon's dream. It is the fourth church for the opening of which he was responsible. And the finest.

All that I have told you, no doubt, you already know. Indeed, there is little I can tell you that you do not know. His affection for the Carmel in Dysart and his reliance on the prayers of the good sisters. His tireless work in the field of Catholic education, that, as my representative, he so strongly upheld for over 25 years, a period that saw in Fife, the opening of two new Catholic high schools and about a dozen new primary buildings. His encouragement of all that might serve to foster a closer association between the various Christian bodies in the town; his involvement in the many civic activities of Kirkcaldy. For almost 40 years, Kirkcaldy was his love—and you, its people. That is why he arranged, not long ago, to be buried here among you. That you, who knew him in life, might be able to visit his grave and remember him, prayerfully, in death. He knew his days were drawing to an end. The suddenness of his passing on Saturday was a grievous shock—to all of us. But it was, I am sure, as he would have chosen. To die, active to the end, and within hours of concelebrating a Holy Mass of Thanksgiving with a brother priest, a Canon of the Chapter of which he was Provost. May he rest in peace.

To his relatives and especially to his sister and to Father John Byrne and his priest nephews, I can only say—thank you for the great priest your family gave us. We owe you a debt we can never repay—except with the promise of a prayer to help you bear the burden of your bereavement, and a prayer in union with yours, for this great priest whom we, priest and people, so dearly loved. May he rest in peace.

Very Reverend Edward Canon Kavanagh, B.A. — 16th May, 1977

Edward Charles Kavanagh was born on 8th November, 1902, in Dumfries, Buncrana, Co. Donegal, Ireland.

He studied at St. Columb's College, Derry, and completed his studies for the priesthood in St. Patrick's, Maynooth, where he was ordained for the Diocese of Derry on 19th June, 1927.

He was loaned by his bishop to Glasgow Archdiocese, but in 1931 obtained his Exeat from Derry Diocese which allowed him to remain in Scotland.

His first appointment was to St. Patrick's, Greenock, where he served as an assistant priest from 1927 to 1932. He was then appointed to St. Roch's, Glasgow, where he served for one year. Subsequently he served as an assistant in Our Lady of Good Aid, Motherwell, from 1933 to 1947. His first appointment as parish priest was to St. Joseph's, Clarkston, where he remained until 1958 when he was transferred to St. Charles', Paisley. In 1968 he was appointed to St. Margaret's, Johnstone, and became a Canon of Paisley Cathedral Chapter. He died in Bon Secours Hospital on 16th May, 1977, and was buried in St. Conval's Cemetery, Barrhead. In the course of his priesthood, therefore, he served in what became the three dioceses which make up the Province of Glasgow.

He also served on the Renfrewshire School Management Committee and was Paisley Diocesan Chaplain of the C.Y.M.S. In every parish he served, the praises of his work as a priest were sung. In his column, "The Week in Scotland," Michael Fallon, Scottish editor of the Irish Weekly, spoke of Canon Kavanagh's work as parish priest in Clarkston, Paisley and Johnstone: "A man of remarkable energy and meticulous in the carrying through of all his Church plans, Canon Kavanagh made a definite impact in these three parishes."

Commenting on the unexpected death of the Canon about a month before attaining his Golden Jubilee, the same writer summed up his career:- "Canon Kavanagh was a totally dedicated priest, a man of tremendous energy who developed every parish in which he served. He was a humble man, yet a parish priest of great distinction."

The parishioners of St. Joseph's, Clarkston, could be taken as speaking for the parishioners of the various parishes when they wrote in his testimonial Address:- "The bond of love between you and us grew stronger each year that you spent with us as a result of the devoted manner in which you performed your priestly duties. Your enthusiasm, your kindly ministrations and your solicitude for the sick and bereaved made manifest your great love of souls."

Canon Kavanagh will also be remembered for his work in various other fields. It was during his stay in Clarkston that the solemn opening of St. Joseph's Church took place—henceforth it was to be used exclusively for Divine Worship—after extensive renovations beautifully executed. The celebrations marking the centenary of St. Bridget's Church, Eaglesham, and the solemn opening of St. Cadoc's Church, Newton Mearns, also took place during his pastorate. The erection of St. Joseph's new school and the transfer of the Catholic children of Newton Mearns and Eaglesham to the new school were the result of his arduous efforts. Due to the number of Masses which had to be offered on Sundays, I think it is true to say he was the first priest in Scotland to receive permission to say three Masses. The introduction of an evening Mass in St. Charles', Paisley, was an innovation also brought about by Canon Kavanagh.

If man's purpose on earth is to give glory to God and at the same time enrich the lives of those with whom he comes in contact, Edward Kavanagh fulfilled his purpose admirably. He glorified God through his priesthood and he enriched the lives of all by the pleasure and joy he gave to those who came in contact with him. We who mourn him are the poorer for his going and the vacuum that is left will be very difficult to fill. On numerous occasions since his death, people have said, "Don't we miss the Canon."

It was said about his arrival in Motherwell that one of the resident priests at the time saw his spare frame alighting from a taxi. Then followed his suitcases, his breviaries and a variety of sporting gear—tennis racquet, football boots, a gun and the inevitable billiard-cue. All this seemed to illustrate the character of the man and his balanced approach to life—no matter how complex life was going to be as a priest, he was going to enjoy it.

One could enumerate the many fine facets of his character—his gentleness, his humility, his conviviality, his hospitality and many more besides; yet one would never convey the complete man. The people loved him and he endeared himself to every priest, particularly those who had the good fortune to live with him.

Physically he never seemed to make any concessions to old age. He retained the same light step and the jaunty tilt of his hat all his life. The only concession he might have made was that he now seemed to sit at some time. Those of us who knew him in earlier days wondered if he ever sat down at all!

Mentally, he made no concessions to old age at all. He retained the same light-hearted approach to life and he got as much pleasure in later life drawing up a sweep on some big race or organising a billiard tournament as he did in his earlier years. He appeared to get the same enjoyment in starting an argument among his clerical friends by quoting something from some pre-Vatican II author. When the argument got heated he was adept as ever in taking the heat out of it by making a very obvious "non sequitur." To his great enjoyment everyone then collapsed in laughter.

And so for almost fifty years the Canon served God and man in his priesthood. One must concede that such an active priest must have kept the Recording Angel busy: the Masses said, Confessions heard, Offices recited, Communion distributed, Baptisms, sick-calls and funerals. But these are statistics and can never convey the charity, kindness and compassion that the Canon exercised in their administration.

Bishop McGill, at the Requiem Mass, said that Canon Kavanagh was a great blessing to thousands of people in the West of Scotland. He described him as "a man of absolute simplicity; a man of faith and a man of the Church who wanted to serve his people totally."

The fact that he was so fond of life and enjoyed it so much put us in the position of disassociating death and the Canon. It came as all the greater shock then, when, suddenly we discovered he was gone to his Eternal Reward. The grief of us all was exemplified by the huge, sorrowing congregation of priests, laity, representatives of local Churches and civic bodies present at the Requiem Mass in St. Margaret's, Johnstone, on Ascension Thursday, 19th May, 1977.

The Right Reverend Monsignor Michael Canon Ward, Prot. Apost., V.G. — 22nd May, 1977

Monsignor Michael Ward, Protonotary Apostolic, Vicar General of the Archdiocese of Glasgow, secretary of the Metropolitan Cathedral Chapter, retired parish priest of St. Mary's, Abercromby Street, died on Sunday, 22nd May, 1977, at St. Francis' Nursing Home, Govan, in the 77th year of his age and the 54th of his priesthood.

The Funeral Mass was concelebrated the following Wednesday, 25th May, in St. Mary's by a large number of dignitaries, canons and other priests, headed by the Archbishop of Glasgow and the two Auxiliary Bishops-elect. Interment took place in St. Peter's Cemetery, Dalbeth. At the Mass, Monsignor Francis Coyle delivered the following panegyric:

"Every priest shudders at the thought of having his praises sung at his Requiem Mass and would far prefer that a simple appeal be made to his people to remember his name in their prayers. More than any other, Monsignor Ward would heartily endorse such an appeal for prayer rather than praise. In spite of that, we must sing his praises, not only because he was praiseworthy, but also because we can learn so much from him about what a priest is and what a priest can do. To quote one of his former assistants, 'He loved being a priest, he brought a professionalism to his work, how well he understood his trade.' He was a great priest who did great things and it would be impossible even to summarise all he did. He lived at least five lives, each one involving virtually a full-time job. All we can hope to do is to give an impression of these lives.

"He was born in Clonbar in County Galway on 21st December, 1900. His early education was in Galway and Waterford until the family returned to their native town of Youghal. He studied for the priesthood at Mount Melleray and St. Peter's College, Bearsden, and was ordained in St. Andrew's Cathedral on 1st May, 1924, and appointed assistant priest to Our Holy Redeemer's, Clydebank, and there he began life as a priest in a parish.

"His work in Clydebank is legendary. He was deeply moved by the poverty in those terrible years of the depression and horrified at the regular boat-loads of Clydebank people leaving these shores to seek their fortune in Canada and Australia. One outstanding aspect (and it is only one outstanding aspect) of his work in Clydebank is to be seen in the vast army of skilled tradesmen, nurses, teachers, lawyers, doctors, trade union officials, local councillors, not to mention countless priests and nuns who owed their first steps in their careers to Father Ward. This army is to be found in every part of the world, and when foreign bishops and dignitaries visited the Archbishop's Office in Glasgow, Monsignor Ward seized the opportunity with nearly every one of them to ask about some Clydebank protégé working in their dioceses. He persuaded and cajoled parents into keeping their children at school and inspired the youngsters with ambition to develop their God-given talents. He ran classes for them in the social teaching of the Church. Perhaps the greatest tribute of all is that he could name every single one of them, outline their career and pinpoint the city and country where they are working.

"After fourteen years in Clydebank, he was transferred to St. Anne's, where he was assistant priest for three years. He became parish priest of St. Isidore's, Biggar, and after a further three years in 1944 he returned to Clydebank as parish priest. Three years later he was given charge of St. Mary's, Calton. To pass over these years quickly does not mean that nothing of importance happened during them. Each parish he served was special to him. He was forever trying out new ideas and new ways of bringing his people to a greater knowledge and love of God. He loved God so much himself that it spilled over into the lives of others. His enthusiasm for the things of God was infectious and could not fail to evoke similar enthusiasm among his people. He instituted a club for young people which provided a meeting place for young people from all over Glasgow, giving them an opportunity for meeting suitable partners for marriage. Novenas in preparation for the great feasts of the Church were extraordinarily well attended. His work in the school among the children, every one of whom he could name, and his ceaseless visitation of the homes of parishioners were carried out with persistence and devotion all through his life in spite of all the work he had outside the parish.

"His second life was in the service of the diocese. He was appointed to the Finance Board in 1949 and played a major part in the massive building programme of the next twenty-five years. He was appointed Vicar General in 1965 and this increased the load of responsibility for diocesan affairs. Three Archbishops had the greatest confidence in his advice and counsel. His advice was sought on all diocesan affairs and he brought a breath of down-to-earth reality to all the deliberations. He could draw on a wealth of experience, and when he spoke of the people's needs and wishes he spoke with the authority of someone who knew those needs and wishes at first hand. He served on at least twenty-two diocesan and national committees concerned with Church affairs and was a most valued member of every single one of them.

"The third life was a deep involvement with religious communities. To mention only a few—he played a great part in the establishment of St. Francis' Maternity Home, St. Margaret's Hospice in Clydebank, the Dominican Sisters' Monastery in Pollokshields, the Bon Secours Hospital, the Franciscan Sisters' Convent in Good Counsel parish, the Daughters of Wisdom in St. Mary's, the Strathclyde University Chaplaincy (Dominican Friars), the Columban Fathers' house. Each of these foundations involved searching for a suitable building, arranging for inspection, purchase and renovation, and it is a mystery how he found time to do all of it. Every convent in the diocese can tell how he spent long hours helping and encouraging them. It is no wonder that with such an abundance of prayers of gratitude his priestly work was so successful.

"His fourth life was with his friends, and especially with his closest friends, his fellow priests. He brought the same enthusiasm to this as to all his other activities. It was important to him—he enjoyed life and he took time off to smell the flowers and would spend many days in the country, but in typical fashion would share his recreation in the company of some sick or ailing priest. He gave great priority to visiting sick priests in hospital.

"His fifth life was his spiritual one, and everyone who met him knew him for a man of God. In a very particular way he loved the Mass and he loved the Mother of God. It is no surprise that he should have been called from this world at the end of the Mass celebrated in his room.

"The greatest tribute to his memory is paid by the priests who served with him. These are the kind of things they have said: 'He loved being a priest.' 'He had a very high regard for the priesthood and for the basics of the priestly life. Prayer was the foundation on which everything else was built.' 'Every parishioner was important and had to be treated with the greatest respect and courtesy.' 'There was no such thing as a hopeless case—he was always confident that something could be done.' 'It was vital to know your people.' 'He could find excitement in the most ordinary and routine priestly work.' 'The Church was his place of work and he was forever in and around it.' 'He loved his people, the old and the young. He loved visiting them. After he took his first stroke, he promised he would only visit those in the bottom flats, but he did not keep his promise, he climbed the stairs.' 'He had a young mind, open to change, and he always looked for the good things in the changes.' 'He made everything sound so simple.' 'He got the best out of people.' 'He had a concern for the whole Church, his interest was not confined to the boundaries of his parish.'

"He decided to stay on in Glasgow when he retired in 1973 and when he left St. Mary's in 1975. He had worked among the people and he wanted to die among the people.

"We usually exaggerate when we talk of the dead; we minimise their faults and emphasise their virtues. It is not that kind of exaggeration to say that Monsignor Ward was one of the greatest priests we have ever had in Glasgow Archdiocese. Monsignor Ward's own request to us would be: 'Remember me before the altar of God.' May he rest in peace."

Reverend Edmond J. Budds — 19th June, 1977

In the evening of the 19th June, 1977 it was announced that Father Ned Budds had died unexpectedly while on holiday with his family. He was fifty-four years of age and had been a priest for twenty-nine years.

Ned Budds was born at Monabraher, Killeagh, County Cork, on 25th June, 1923. He received his early education at the local National School and at the Christian Brothers' School in Youghal. He completed his secondary education in St. Colman's College, Fermoy. It was no surprise to his family when he decided to study for the priesthood. He entered St. John's College, Waterford, in September 1942. For the next six years he advanced in wisdom and holiness. A man of brilliant intellect, keen and skilful on the hurling field. He was ordained priest in the Cathedral, Waterford, on 6th June, 1948.

That summer he came to begin his priestly ministry in the Archdiocese of Glasgow and was appointed curate at St. Aloysius', Springburn.

His labours in Scotland were under four parish priests: Canon Cornelius Dennehy in St. Aloysius', Springburn; Father James Fitzgibbon in Immaculate Heart of Mary, Balornock; Father Thomas J. O'Kane in St. Michael's, Parkhead, and Canon Cornelius O'Leary in St. Peter's, Partick.

Father Budds remained in his first parish until December of 1951. He was then transferred to the recently established parish of the Immaculate Heart of Mary, Balornock. In October, 1957, he was transferred to St. Michael's, Parkhead and he remained there until September, 1966 when he was sent to St. Peter's, Partick. In 1973 he became parish priest of St. Mark's, Carntyne.

The bare facts about Ned Budds tell us little about the man or the priest. In St. Aloysius', Springburn and the Immaculate Heart of Mary he will be remembered especially for his great work in ministering to the sick in Stobhill Hospital—indeed an apostolate he was to continue later in the Western Infirmary. For the parishioners of St. Michael's, Parkhead, he had a great affection. He will be remembered here especially for his interest in the Legion of Mary and his eloquent sermons.

His appointment as parish priest of St. Mark's was one of the grand moments in his life. It was a short pastorate, but he has already won a lasting place in the hearts of the people. As in all the other parishes, the people of St. Mark's responded to his kind and gentle nature. He was a man of simple charity in the true meaning of the word. He loved God and because he loved God, he loved his people.

In an age of changing values, Father Budds continued in his steadfast loyalty to the teaching authority of the Catholic Church and in unswerving obedience to our Holy Father.

Ned Budds was a quiet man, he was also a nice man. The simple relaxation and joys of his life he found in his regular visits to his family in Cork, or in the company of his many friends in Scotland or in the game of golf with his colleagues.

This tribute is a simple gesture of appreciation of one who was privileged to know him well.

His remains were received at the Parish Church at Inch on Wednesday, 22nd June, 1977. On Thursday, 23rd June, 1977, concelebrated Requiem Mass was offered by Archbishop Winning and a number of priests from Scotland and Ireland. Afterwards his mortal remains were buried in the cemetery near the Church at Inch, the Church in which he received his First Holy Communion and said his first Mass.

Eternal rest grant unto him, O Lord,
And let perpetual light shine upon him.
May he rest in peace.

Very Reverend Matthew Canon Littleton — 9th August, 1977

Canon Matthew Littleton, parish priest of St. Joseph's, Kilmarnock, died peacefully on the 9th August, 1977. He was 73 years of age, 48 years in the priesthood, and half of his priestly life had been spent in St. Joseph's. His great wish to die "in harness" had been fulfilled. His passing to his eternal reward removed one more of that dwindling band of men we fondly refer to as characters.

Matthew Littleton was born at Dangan, in the parish of Quinn, Co. Clare on the 8th December, 1903, the youngest of a family of seven which was destined to give another son to the priesthood and a daughter to the religious life. He began his education in the local national school and later he entered St. Flannan's College, Ennis, for his secondary education. In September, 1922 he entered All Hallows College, Dublin, to study for the priesthood. During the first two years of his seminary life he attended the National University of Ireland which entitled him, as he often said, to the letters, U.G.N.U.I. after his name. In 1929 he was ordained for the Archdiocese of Glasgow. In July of that year he took up his first appointment for a short spell in St. Patrick's, Anderston. In September he was appointed curate in Holy Cross, Croy. He was to remain there for three years during which he acquired a tremendous regard for the mining community. Once he risked his own life to go down and attend to miners trapped underground. These were the years of the Great Depression and it must have been a real test for a young priest in a strange country. That he measured up to the challenge is borne out by the fact that he is still remembered in that parish with great affection. Even in recent years, his former parishioners, and their children, called on him in Kilmarnock. Surely proof of his devotion and zeal in trying times.

In 1932 he was appointed to St. Joseph's, North Woodside Road, in Glasgow, a parish formerly administered by the Jesuits. Materially his status could not have improved but that was secondary in his book. The deplorable housing conditions and chronic unemployment of the area was something that he never could forget. He was a great visitor "of his district," a favourite phrase of his. He saw at first hand good, honest people trying to bring up their families in impossible conditions and he set about doing what he could to help them materially and spiritually. One organisation for which he is still remembered, not only in St. Joseph's but elsewhere, is the Boys Guild. He saw this society as a chance to get to know the youth and the young men of the parish and an opportunity to channel their God-given talents in the right direction. He was one of the first priests in Scotland to form a men's praesidium of the Legion of Mary. This he did in St. Joseph's. While others talked about the need for a book-barrow, he went and built one himself, thus showing at this early stage a particular trait of his character for which he would be famous in later years. This piece of furniture would no doubt have borne the Littleton trademark "a thing of beauty is a joy forever."

In 1936 things must have improved materially for Fr. Littleton, for he was appointed to St. Columbkille's, Rutherglen, as assistant to the late Canon MacIntosh, a man whose picture always graced his mantelpiece and for whom he had the greatest respect and admiration. In 1939/40 he was transferred to St. John's, Port-Glasgow, where he remained throughout the war years. Again he was to experience at first hand and share his people's suffering and tragedy, this time as a result of the Clydeside air raids. He was literally a tower of strength as he strove to rescue people trapped and maimed in the debris of their blitzed homes. He spoke sometimes of how he and his fellow priests anointed hundreds of dead and injured on one night.

It was during this period that he fell ill himself. Probably as a result of malnutrition and sheer exhaustion, he contracted pneumonia, which put him in hospital for a lengthy period and almost took his life.

In 1945 he was again on the move, this time to the Ayrshire coastal town of Ardrossan. His "boss" here was Mgr. McSparran, whom he had also worked with in Croy, again a man whom he highly respected as a priest and a gentleman. This change was to have a very significant effect on his life. It would take him not only to a new parish but shortly a new diocese. In 1948 diocesan boundaries were changed and he found himself in the Diocese of Galloway. He had a great regard for the Archdiocese of Glasgow, above all for the friendly and strong Catholic tradition of its people and the loyalty of its priests who were his colleagues and friends. Down through the years he was a familiar and welcome sight at church openings, funerals, celebrations of different kinds throughout the archdiocese. But he was always a priest of Galloway Diocese, totally accepting the change as God's will.

In 1950 he was given the charge of St. Patrick's, Auchinleck, or Birnie Knowe as it was then called. Once again he was closely involved with the mining community, and he is fondly remembered there, though his stay was a short one. In July 1953, Bishop McGee appointed him parish priest of what was then the largest and probably the most demanding parish in the diocese, St. Joseph's, Kilmarnock, where he was to spend the rest of his life. His wide experience, allied to a strong constitution which never allowed him to shrink from hard logging, ideally equipped him for the challenge ahead.

His ministry in St. Joseph's was to be a long and fruitful one. He arrived to find St. Michael's, Shortlees, about to open as a separate parish. He saw the new parish on its feet and immediately turned to the other side of the town. Onthank was a large and sprawling housing estate as much in need of a church as Shortlees and Bellfield. But, first things first, he had to attend to the needs of the mother church. St. Joseph's itself needed urgent attention. He closed the church to allow major internal plastering and redecoration. New confessionals, cloak, car-park facilities, drainage were needed. He did much of the work himself, often to the amazement and admiration of his parishioners as he slogged away in his dungarees, black bonnet, and sturdy labourer's boots. In 1963 the new Church of Our Lady of Mount Carmel was opened in Onthank. It was a marvellous occasion, both the church ceremony and the reception in the grand hall afterwards, which only he could have organised and conducted. The church is a fine building, and those of us who knew him well can see the stamp of his personality on it, a building with real character, a solid, impressive structure built to meet the needs of the area for many years to come. It may be easy to build: it is another matter to pay for the building. It was part of his make-up that he would not start what he could not finish: he would not build and leave others to pay the bills. He never used his pulpit to appeal for money for the needs of his parish. For the missions and other worthy causes—that was a different matter. He believed that his people would respond if he offered them something worthwhile—and they did wholeheartedly. To augment the parish collections he organised, in typical pioneering style, the largest and most successful social club in the district, based at the parochial hall, blazing a trail which many cinemas found profitable to follow.

In 1970 St. Joseph's again needed attention, this time to be re-adapted to meet the needs of the new liturgy. He was not always in total sympathy with the new changes brought about by Vatican II, especially if it meant bringing in architects, contractors, etc., to alter the structure of his beloved St. Joseph's. The worst fears of his curates at the time that he might tackle the job himself were realised one Saturday afternoon when, with the help of a compressor and two of his Irish "labourers," he set about removing the back of the altar. It did not work. Professional advice and skill were needed to "modernise" a building 130 years old.

In 1971 he had to turn his attention to the new housing estate of New Farm Loch. With his customary foresight, he had years before acquired an option on ground for a possible new church. As it turned out, his chosen site was about the best possible in the whole estate. He initiated the new parish, St. Matthew's, in 1974, and made a major contribution towards the new church-hall. One of his last public appearances was to attend the Solemn Opening on 24th April of this year, 1977. His last project, the building of a new hall for St. Joseph's, had just started. He was keenly interested in it and only the day before his death he was seen examining the foundations. It was not God's will for him to see the building completed.

During all this activity he received two honours which he valued highly. In 1966 he was elected to the Cathedral Chapter, and in 1975 he received the Freedom of the Burgh of Kilmarnock.

Canon Littleton was a man of great physical strength and energy. During his last few years he found it difficult to accept that he could no longer do the strenuous work he was accustomed to all his life. In his young days he was a noted exponent of his national game of hurling, a full back whose motto was, regarding opposing forwards, "Thou shalt not pass." It was his proud record that his college team never lost a game. His strength and determination were evident in the construction and repair work he carried out at St. Joseph's. He liked to be his own architect, master of works, contractor and abourer. He may not have won any awards for design, but solidity and endurance were hallmarks of his work. One major exception to his do-it-yourself approach was Mount Carmel Church and presbytery already mentioned. Even then he was closely involved in the construction. Every evening he could be seen on the site inspecting the day's work, removing what he considered poor workmanship. Architects and contractors were never his close friends during the building process, but once the job was completed to his satisfaction he would be profuse in his praise.

He was very much at home in Scotland, but he never forgot his origins and his Irish heritage. The sheer joy that exuded from him as he set off on holiday, especially if he were going to his beloved Co. Clare, could only be equalled by the schoolboy going home for Christmas after his first term in boarding school.

He saw his rôle as parish priest going beyond the confines of his parish and his own parishioners. He was intensely interested in the community and was highly respected by civic and community leaders. He had the unique distinction of being given the Freedom of the Burgh of Kilmarnock in April 1975, in conjunction with such distinguished figures as Mr. William Ross, M.P., then Secretary of State for Scotland, and Lord Howard De Walden. In failing health at the time, the honour gave him a great boost, and as always he rose to the occasion with a speech which Mr. Ross later described as "absolutely marvellous." Those of us who worked closely with him often felt that had he not become a priest he would surely have reached high office in the police department. He had a great liaison with the police, and on a number of occasions he was responsible for apprehending criminals who from time to time visited St. Joseph's—not to pray or to enquire after his health. In November 1976, only a few months before his death, he was the proud recipient of a letter from the then Chief Constable of Strathclyde, Mr. David McNee, commending him on the part he played in the capture of three youths on the police wanted list whom he found in the church. If at times, as Mgr. Kennedy put it in his panegyric, he "obeyed the law in a disorderly manner," he was ruthless with those who did not respect his property. To an onlooker, St. Joseph's may have appeared as a "Wild West station" or a "fort under siege," but it was his home and he was determined that no one would invade it. Barbed wire, steel truncheons, blackthorn sticks, were part of his defence mechanism. A young man was once observed departing from St. Joseph's at record pace. He had been disturbed by the Canon trying to steal his car and had been encouraged to get on his way with the blackthorn. One cannot be sure, but it is a safe bet that he never returned to the scene of his crime. Canon Littleton was a respected member of the local Crime Prevention Panel, in which he played an active rôle for many years. Education was another great interest in his life. For twenty-one years he was the Church's representative on the Area Education Sub-Committee, a task he fulfilled with great regularity and zeal. His Sunday sermons frequently contained exhortations to parents to see that their children applied themselves to their lessons. He was convener of St. Joseph's Academy for many years, a familiar figure as chairman at prize-giving and other school functions. He was very honoured when the Rector gave one of the School Bursaries for the Native Priest Fund his name. Many generations of pupils will remember with awe his presence as invigilator at public examinations, a task he carried out in his own inimitable style. He played a significant rôle in campaigning for Mount Carmel Primary School at the same time as he was building the church. Over a long period he fought for buses to bring St. Joseph's Academy pupils to the school gates. He did not think it was fair that, as he put it, "children from outlying districts should be dumped at the bus station." He eventually won his case. He had also a special interest in the care of the sick, especially that involving Kilmarnock Infirmary. Twice yearly he was invited by the teaching staff to speak to the student nurses on the work of the priest in the hospital. The nurses were always vividly impressed by his talk. He was keenly interested in the new hospital being built at Crosshouse and had arranged for facilities for Mass to be offered there and a room for the chaplain's use.

He obviously had many commitments of his own to consider but, perhaps unknown to most, he helped, and encouraged others to help, such places as Nazareth House, Fatima House, Coodham, the Verona Fathers, Hansel Village, the National Institution for the Blind, not to mention parishes in need in the diocese. He was a member of the Quota Fund, through which he procured financial help for the smaller parishes throughout the country. He valued loyalty highly, both to himself and the Church. This side of his character could be recognised in his active support of the Retired Housekeepers' Association, which he served for many years. He believed that those women who dedicated their lives to the service of the Church as priests' housekeepers should be adequately supported by the Church in their retirement.

If he prized loyalty in others, he himself also gave it to those who stood by him, and above all to his Bishop and to the Church in general. In common with many priests of his age, he strove manfully to adjust to rapid changes in the Church following the Second Vatican Council. Previously, when newly ordained priests came to him, he invariably presented them with a book on the rubrics of the Mass—to be returned, of course! His demonstration on how to ensure a valid baptism was impressive. Latin scholars may have squirmed, but there was absolutely no doubt that water flowed over that baby's head. His devotion to his daily Mass never wavered, even when the changes caused not a little confusion, as happened on one occasion as he "whispered" to one of his curates, boldly directing him through Sunday Mass, "whoever heard of a secret prayer out loud?" On another frustrating moment he was heard to warn his people, "Next Sunday the altar may be on the roof." In his last years his doctor advised him against saying public Masses. Private or not, on 2nd November and Christmas Day, he faithfully offered his three Masses. His birthday was on the feast of the Immaculate Conception. Perhaps that inspired his devotion to the Rosary. He would say it in his car if out late, often a comforting support for his passengers bemused by his unique style of driving, traffic lights and one-way streets being particularly unnecessary.

He had a brusque manner which often made him seem aloof and difficult to approach. But he had a big heart, as his busy confessional indicated and the occasional discovery of his sympathy, understanding and charity to people in need. It is easy to believe that there are many more similar beneficiaries. Deep down he loved children, even if at times his manner and personality overwhelmed them. One recent incident comes to mind. One of his curates was faced with a tearful child outside the church, and having asked what the problem was, he was informed, "I have lost my bus money and a big man with big, bushy eyebrows told me I would have to walk home." Had he been able to drive, he would have driven the child home.

As a preacher he was definitely of the old school. At his best, his message was clear and to the point, impressively backed up with apt quotations from the Scriptures. His wonderful choice of phrase allied to his wit made him a popular and informative preacher. It was indeed rare for anyone to sleep during his sermon. On one occasion the pulpit bookstand ended in pieces in the front seat as he emphasised that the Church was built on "rock"!

Canon Littleton will be remembered by many people for different reasons. Some will think of him as a public figure in the community, others will think of his church-building projects and his "tin shacks" around St. Joseph's, others of the almost "ungodly" figure seen labouring around the church and garden, others again of his forthright sermons; but those who worked with him and knew him well will remember him as a man larger than life in some ways, yet amazingly simple and ordinary in others. Despite the complexity of his character, he had a down-to-earth approach to life and was a jovial companion and a wonderful story-teller. A wise counsellor in the ways of God and man, he was a priest dedicated to the service of the Church.

His funeral from St. Joseph's on Friday, 12th August, with Mgr. S. Kennedy, V.G., as chief concelebrant in the absence of Bishop McGee, who was out of the country on holiday, was a fitting tribute to one who had served God's people for forty-eight years. Bishop Devine, Auxiliary Bishop of Glasgow, was one of the concelebrants, as was his nephew, Fr. Pat Littleton from Dublin, and Canon P. Gunning, St. Brendan's, Saltcoats, his cousin. A large congregation, representative of Church and community, including Mr. William Ross, M.P., his friend and fellow burgess, filled the church to capacity as they paid their last respects to one who will be greatly missed for a long time. He was laid to rest in Kilmarnock Cemetery alongside three of his illustrious predecessors. One cannot pass that way without remembering a frequent remark so characteristic of the man, "I'll be up there in Grassyards Road keeping an eye on you." May he rest in peace and be rewarded for his labours in the Lord's vineyard.

Reverend John Cunningham — 18th August, 1977

On 18th August, 1977, the Diocese of Aberdeen lost the priestly services of a comparatively young man, the Rev. John Cunningham, parish priest of St. Mary's, Nairn. He died suddenly on the way to hospital after receiving the anointing of the sick from a priest who providentially had spent the day with him.

On the following Monday, 22nd August, the Bishop and many diocesan priests, parishioners, friends and visitors, filled the little church of Nairn for a Requiem Mass at which the Bishop, the Right Reverend Mario Conti, gave the homily. In it he referred to Father John's strong will and weak health. Though a diabetic invalid since his college days, he had overcome all difficulties on the way to the priesthood, and had won the enduring respect and love of his colleagues and fellow priests. He was a priests' priest, fiercely loyal to the Church and its teachings, impatient of all cant, and deeply sympathetic towards all those who were in any way underprivileged. This led him at times to be very forthright in his preaching and manner. If some took offence, those who really knew him, loved and respected him. He was a man who did not spare himself, and gave in obedience to his superiors what he expected from others in respect to his own priesthood. He was therefore at home among friends equally in Dunrobin Castle with the Duchess of Sutherland as with the poorer parishioners of Foot-Dee in Aberdeen. He had the characteristics of a soldier, said the Bishop, with courage born of a long experience of suffering. Perhaps this made him particularly happy at Fort George Barracks, where he was an admired chaplain to the Catholic officers and men.

He was loved by children, and wherever he went as parish priest he had a crowd of altar boys in willing attendance on him. It was perhaps significant that two aspirants to the priesthood from the parish both acknowledged Father John's influence on their vocations.

He was very solicitous about catechising the children. He was not impressed by modern catechetics, preferring the time-proven methods that were in more accord anyway with his own temperament.

He was very happy in the company of his fellow priests and enjoyed recalling absent members, being especially acute in his acted observations of their characteristic expressions or foibles.

Above all, he was a man devoted to Christ the High Priest and was most regular himself in the devotions he commended to others. Just over a week before he died he had taken part, though obviously very tired, in the exercises of the biennial retreat at Fort Augustus. He was a regular visitor to both Fort Augustus and Pluscarden Abbeys. The presence of the abbots and monks at the Nairn Requiem bore testimony to their respect and affection for him. Not for him, said the bishop, to end his days in a long evening of retirement; it was more in character with him to die in the noon of his life in the midst of the "good fight."

On 23rd August there was a Pontifical Requiem at St. Mary's Cathedral, Aberdeen, attended by a large congregation of priests and people, especially from his native Aberdeen. They were led by his mother and brothers and their families. Three of his priestly cousins took part in the concelebrated Mass.

The formal panegyric was given by the Rev. David Keith of St. Peter's, Buckie. He gave the following brief statistics: "Born in 1931, Father John was educated at Blairs and St. Edmund's in Ware. Ordained in 1955 at St. Peter's, he was a curate in the Cathedral. Then he was parish priest in 1958 at Brora. Due to illness, 1966 was spent in London. Then he was parish priest at Stonehaven in 1967, at Stratherrick in 1968 and at Nairn in 1973." He commented: "These are the bare facts in the life of one dedicated to the love of God and full of zeal for the salvation of souls given into his charge. A fierce loyalty to the Church and its traditions—humble, simple obedience to his lawful superiors, even when he might not agree with them. 'If that's what the boss wants, that's what the boss will get,' characterised him."

He spoke particularly of his preaching: "At ordination he had been told by his bishop—Oportet sacerdotem praedicare—a priest must preach. Ordination gives none of us any special gift of eloquence, no facility or fluency of words—these are helpful, but immaterial. What the priest must do is, simply, preach. Preach the Word of God in season and out of season. As it is written in Holy Scripture, 'The Spirit of the Lord is upon me. He has anointed me and sent me to preach the Gospel to the poor.' That capacity to preach, and his love of the poor, were with Father John at all times. Perhaps because he never forgot his own humble origins, his sympathy lay with the underdog, the oppressed, and more often than not it showed.

"He was an accomplished musician. Latterly it could have been his only relaxation. Many people remarked about his getting down from the altar and playing the hymns for his congregation at Mass or Devotions."

Referring again to the ill-health that dogged his life, Father Keith remarked: "Words from the second reading of last Sunday's Mass seem apposite: 'The Lord trains the ones he loves and he punishes all those he acknowledges as his sons. Suffering is part of your training.' Illness accompanied him for most of his priestly life, but he never gave in to it, nor did he complain nor use it as an excuse for not getting on with the work of God among men."

Father Keith concluded by remarking on how greatly the bishop and priests of the diocese would miss him, and by extending the sympathy of all to his mother and family, to his faithful housekeeper, and to his parishioners. His body was buried at Allnavale Cemetery, Aberdeen.

"Now, Lord, you have kept your word, let your servant go in peace. With his own eyes, he has seen the salvation which you have prepared in the sight of every people."

Reverend James Francis Walsh — 28th August, 1977

The death took place on Sunday, 28th August, 1977, at Gartnavel General Hospital, Glasgow, of the Reverend James Francis Walsh, lecturer in Church History at St. Peter's College, Cardross. He was thirty-nine years of age.

James Walsh was born on 27th December, 1937, in the parish of Holy Cross, Glasgow. He was the product of an exemplary Catholic home, and it was his ambition, almost from the time that he was first able to express it, to be a priest. Catholic homes may not now produce such sons so abundantly as in the past, but Holy Cross parish has ever been prolific in such homes. It was there that he was baptised, confirmed, and made his First Holy Communion; and it was in Holy Cross Primary School that he received his early education. Later, he went to St. Aloysius' College and Blairs College, whence he came to St. Peter's College, Cardross, on 1st September, 1956. There he joined a class that soon found a strong corporate identity which was maintained, over the years, by close friendship and annual reunions. His class of ten were ordained to the priesthood on 29th June, 1962, and his nine classmates were among the concelebrants at his funeral Mass.

At Cardross, James Walsh was the typical seminarian. He relished the company of his fellow students—even during vacations—gamely participated in sports for which he had no great natural talent, enjoyed the cut and thrust of exclusively masculine conversation, and indulged his capacity for hard work unremittingly. He had a sharp mind and a quick tongue. His ribbing of his companions and his mimicking of the staff, typical student pastimes, were always amusing and never malicious. After ordination he did two years' post-graduate work in Rome, at the Gregorian University, and returned home with a Licentiate in Church History.

He was appointed to St. Thomas', Riddrie, and served as a curate there for three years, 1964-67. He clearly had a great influence on young people in the parish. Throughout his years on the staff at Cardross, they—and their parents—constantly wrote, telephoned and visited him. He delighted in being available to them. Once, during the last weeks of his sickness, a colleague ventured to suggest that he was being too gracious to his callers and that, possibly, they should be discouraged a little. His reply was instant and characteristic: "I like having visitors!"

Father Walsh was appointed to the staff of St. Peter's College in October 1967 and he was its lecturer in Church History for ten years. He was well fitted for seminary work quite apart from his academic qualifications, for his virtues and idiosyncrasies were of the sort that appeal to young men. He was transparently sincere and utterly candid. He brooked no flattery and had no favourites. He showed little emotion, worked hard and never missed a public duty. In comment he was forceful, in repartee he was devastating; truly, a man's man. He was a good teacher too. He had the keen mind which sees beyond the accidental trappings to the essentials, and he had the command of language which enabled him to express himself trenchantly. His painstaking preparation for class was manifest in his lectures. No factor which contributed to a situation, no circumstance which influenced a character was omitted in his survey. All were relevant to the formation of a judgement and the declaration of a verdict. Yet, the wider concerns were not ignored. He was eager to ensure that his students were healthily modern; fully conversant with the principles employed by the Church in the renewal of herself and her mission, and still—as befitted a historian—anxious that they would easily take their place in a clerical body and a laity which greatly prizes the antiquity of its religious heritage.

Like other priests in seminary work, especially today, Father Walsh had to meet extra-mural demands on his time. His work for The Innes Review, The Scottish Catholic Historical Association and The Priests' Eucharistic League were not, possibly, widely known, but time-consuming for all that. A wider public benefited from his week-end parochial work. He won many friends among priests and lay people in his supply work, especially at Garelochhead, Helensburgh, Milngavie and St. Helen's, Langside.

Father Walsh was conscious—as is any tutor, be he priest, parent or teacher—that formal instruction must be confirmed by living example. In that context, his most abiding lesson was taught during the course of his sickness. Some priests find themselves, almost by chance, discharging a particular ministry. Others are directed by their superiors into special work. One or two chosen souls are called by God to fulfil a delicate apostolate. Father Walsh was ill for two and a half years, but those months were not spent in sickly languor. They were, possibly, the most fruitful of his fifteen priestly years. The hospital chaplain related how Father Walsh brought a gaiety and laughter to a ward in which the atmosphere tends to be rather sombre and quiet. On more than one occasion, consultants sought his help in the counselling of patients who were finding it difficult to reconcile themselves to the diagnosis of their trouble. Such richness of character is only drawn from the deepest spiritual wells. Further evidence of his intimacy with our Saviour is furnished by the fact that none of his confrères ever heard him, during the whole course of his illness, complain of pain, discomfort or trepidation. "Is he suffering? Has he any pain?" his colleagues were constantly asked. They never knew. Throughout his long trial he never sought sympathy, succumbed to sentimentality or lost his sense of humour. The night before he died, a visitor related how a prominent city soccer team had been beaten yet again on that afternoon. "They're in a worse state than I am!" he quipped. In a moment or two, with his next visitor—a priest—he was praying devoutly for a happy death. The chief beneficiaries of his model lesson in Christian virtue were, of course, the priests and students of St. Peter's College. For many years to come, the care of the sick entrusted to these privileged witnesses will be influenced by that heroic example; and for their own confrontation with sickness and death they have a noble pattern.

The crowd of priests and people at the funeral Mass for Father Walsh in Holy Cross Church on Wednesday, 31st August, testified to the high esteem in which he was held and to the great influence which he had wielded among them, despite the fact that his last ten years were spent in the comparative seclusion of the College. Archbishop Winning was the principal celebrant, of the Mass and among the hundred concelebrants were Bishops McGill, Renfrew and Devine. The Archbishop also presided at the interment of the mortal remains of James Walsh in St. Peter's Cemetery, Dalbeth. Requiescat in pace.

Reverend Joseph Connelly — 29th August, 1977

God called Father Joseph Connelly very suddenly. There had been nothing to make anyone suspect that death was very near that Monday morning in August, yet at 4.30 in the afternoon, Father Joseph Connelly was called to his eternal reward; death had come like a thief in the night.

Joseph Connelly was born in Dalmuir on 7th June, 1913. He was educated at the local school of St. Stephen and then at St. Patrick's, Dumbarton, from where he went to the national minor seminary of St. Mary's College, Blairs, Aberdeen. On the completion of his studies at Blairs he was sent to the Pontifical Scots College, Rome. The climate there did not agree with him, and he returned to Scotland to continue his studies at St. Peter's College, Bearsden. On the completion of his studies, he was ordained in St. Andrew's Cathedral, Glasgow, by Bishop Graham on 29th June, 1939. His first appointment was to St. Fillan's, Houston, which was then in the Archdiocese of Glasgow; he was there for three months. At the end of this short time he was appointed to St. Paul's and St. Mark's, Shettleston, which was then a joint parish. To this day, the people of Shettleston harbour fond memories of Father Connelly. His work in the parish was zealous and untiring, especially his work with the youth and the boys. His name became a household word in the homes of the boys, many of whom owed their success in adult life to the guidance they received from him in their formative years. His kindness and attention to the sick earned him a place in the hearts of all. When the parishes of St. Paul's and St. Mark's were separated again, he remained in St. Paul's.

His activities were cut short drastically by a serious heart attack in 1949. His amazing recovery was due to the great attention and devotion he received from his doctors and medical staff of the hospitals, for whom he always had the highest praise. On his recovery, he was appointed chaplain to the approved school of St. Ninian, first at Kirkconnel and then at Gartmore, in which post he was to remain for seven years. Here once again his influence on the youth was immense. In 1957, he was transferred to St. Flannan's, Kirkintilloch, as assistant priest. He was overjoyed to be back on the parish mission once again, and for the next five years he took upon himself a workload as much as any fully fit priest would be proud of.

In 1962, Archbishop Campbell sent Father Connelly to St. Maria Goretti's, Cranhill, as administrator, and the following year appointed him as parish priest. At this time Father Connelly set about his work with renewed vigour and soon established himself as a well-loved pastor of souls. But his health suffered a serious setback when he took a stroke, and it was doubtful whether or not he would recover. Indeed he was literally at death's door. His fighting spirit and the medical care he received allowed him to come back to health gradually, and it was a joyful day when he returned to his parish. His active work in the parish had to be curtailed.

His abilities and natural talents were recognised by his superiors, and he was appointed as Secretary to the Finance Board in 1968. His thoroughness and attention to detail made him an invaluable asset to the Board. It was no surprise when he was appointed as the Archdiocesan representative on the Board of Governors of St. Philip's List D School, Plains. In this capacity, his experience with youth and his time as chaplain to approved schools proved of great benefit to St. Philip's.

In 1974, Archbishop Winning appointed him Episcopal Vicar for Fabric and Planning in the Archdiocese of Glasgow. At about this time his health began failing and for some time he was unable to undertake active duties. But once again his resilience and spirit were amazing and it looked as if he might return to full active work. However, this was not to be, and when he died on 29th August, 1977, the Archdiocese of Glasgow suffered the loss of a great pastor of souls and a priest of many talents.

Father Joseph Connelly was a very sincere man. Those who knew him found him to be of resolute character, a priest of prayerfulness, with a great sense of humour. He had a deep understanding of human nature which brought much consolation to many people. His devotion to Our Lady was well known to all. He was a man of sincerity, a man of humility whose influence for good was outstanding. He loved to be in the parish, working as a priest. At his funeral Mass, Archbishop Thomas Winning, Bishop Charles Renfrew and Bishop Joseph Devine concelebrated with more than seventy priests, in the presence of a great number of people of St. Maria Goretti's parish. He was buried in St. Peter's Cemetery, Dalbeth, on Thursday 1st September, 1977. May he rest in peace.

Reverend Michael O'Sullivan — 10th September, 1977

The undiscovered ends of a man's life, however deep the pile, however tangled the skein, go out from "quiet homes." Home is the most beautiful word in the language; it is the cradle, the nursery, the bulwark and rock of civilisation. Priests the world over assure us that there is nothing in the wide world comparable to the warmth and vitality of a Catholic home, where religion runs deep and Christianity is a throbbing force, stirring hearts and bending wills.

Into such a home Father Michael was born on 2nd April, 1902, adjacent to Roscarbery, W. Cork. He had the privilege of being baptised in the same font as the late Canon Michael McCarthy of Kinning Park. Racy of the soil and hewn from the rock of W. Cork, he inherited a native manliness; the manliness of the sturdy farmer who works against odds, the manliness that struggles for rights and fights injustice, the manliness of the sportsman. He had a certain toughness and rock-like resilience which both in him and his family was tempered by humour, humility, gratitude to God, love of Christ and his Blessed Mother, a contemplative outlook which saw the passing scene of the world in proper perspective over against the everlastingness of the world of God.

Having received his early education in the local school, the High School, Skibbereen and Mount Melleray, he entered St. Kieran's, Kilkenny, in September 1923. His colleagues during his student days described him as a "great character."

Ordained on 9th June, 1929, he began his priestly work in the Archdiocese. For seventeen years he endeared himself to the people of Newton—years covering the Depression. Through it all he exhibited the ideals of the priesthood. He spent another six at St. Constantine's, Govan. There again people with the instinct of the Faith saw in him a true priest, a man without guile, a priest to the fingertips. In 1951 he became pastor at Renton. There he spent the last twenty-three years of priestly activity until failing health forced his retirement to St. Paul's, Clonakilty. In Renton, his reputation grew, embracing the whole Vale of Leven from Loch Lomond to Dumbarton. Father Michael was known, loved, admired and sought. There he saw a tangible materialisation of his work in St. Martin's new church solemnly opened by the late Archbishop Scanlan on 13th December, 1970. Yet he was the first to realise that the Church is not just made of bricks and mortar, but is God's people growing in Christ into a building not made with hands, eternal in heaven. To this purpose he prayed, lived and worked. In the words of St. Paul to Timothy he was "a workman that needed not to be ashamed rightly handling the word of truth."

In March 1974 in a farewell gesture the people of Renton honoured him. They addressed him as a "noble scion of the Celtic race, the product of the faith of generations—a faith purified in the dark night of persecution and emerging with Catholic emancipation (1829) in a great flowering throughout the world." It was a nostalgic evening. Present were Bishop Winning, his fellow priests, the local minister and the people of St. Martin's. The scene was reminiscent of St. Luke's chapter 20 in the Acts of the Apostles when St. Paul spoke to the Ephesians for the last time: "All wept, some sorrowing most of all for the word which he had spoken, that they should see his face no more."

St. Malachy of Armagh died at Clairvaux in the arms of St. Bernard, having taken ill on the way to Rome. As he lay dying he quoted Psalm 131: "Haec requies mea in saeculum saeculi, hic habitabo quoniam desideravi eam" ("This is my resting place forever, here have I chosen to live").

The dying sentiments of St. Malachy are apt to describe Father Michael's last three and a half years with the Good Sisters of St. Paul the Apostle. Time and again he expressed his gratitude: "I could not be in a better place." With St. Paul he could say: "I have fought the good fight, I have finished the race, I have kept the faith." He died peacefully on Saturday, 10th September, 1977.

Bishop Lucey of Cork presided at his Requiem, concelebrated by Bishop Renfrew, Bishop Durkin of Transvaal, and priests from Glasgow and Cork. Present were his only surviving brother Tim, and sister, Sister Marcella (Bon Secours), nephews, nieces, relatives and friends. Later, Archbishop Winning, Bishop Devine and his many priest friends concelebrated Mass at St. Martin's, Renton, with a full congregation.

The sod of his native county lies on all that is mortal of Father Michael. In the language of his forebears we pray: "Súnas sfórrai dá anam i bfocair na Maideana Muire agus na naomh uile" ("Eternal peace to his soul in the company of the Virgin Mary and all the saints").

Very Reverend John Canon Ward — 11th October, 1977

Canon John Ward, parish priest of North Berwick, died in Roodlands Hospital, Haddington, on 11th October, 1977, in the 76th year of his age and the 51st of his priesthood. At the funeral Mass in St. Mary's Cathedral, Edinburgh, on 14th October, prior to the interment in Mount Vernon Cemetery, the following panegyric was delivered by the Right Reverend Mgr. Peter Canon Connolly:

"After completing fifty years of priesthood, Canon John Ward has died. First of all, I must offer our deep sympathy and heartfelt thanks to his housekeeper for the many years of devoted service to the Canon. We all know how much he depended on her care and attention, and how well she responded to his trust in her. And I would like to thank all the parishes where he worked for helping him to enjoy his priesthood. Their co-operation together with his own strong faith gave him joy in all his work. He was sure of his sharing the Priesthood of Christ, and this made him sure of himself in his ministry. This was the reason behind his endeavour to get things right. Some may have thought he was 'finicky,' but his carefulness sprang from his overwhelming reverence for the office he held. So he welcomed the opportunity of spending most mornings in the schools of his various parishes, though he found instructing children a difficult task. But he was inspired by the encouragement of teachers who were ever willing to accommodate their timetables to welcome him. Such dedication carried its own 'open sesame.'

"The care and attention he gave to his mother in her venerable old age, an example no-one could forget, was reflected in the gentle care of all his sick and aged parishioners. They could rely on him. And that really sums him up—his superiors, his fellow priests, his parishioners could rely on his fidelity and friendship at all times. And the foundation of this fidelity was to be found in his life of prayer. This must always be so. His parishioners everywhere will remember how he invited them to join him every evening in his night Rosary to foster their and his own devotion to the Mother of God. He often told me how successful he was in saying the various Hours of the Divine Office at the right time of day. He was not a procrastinator. His preparation for daily Mass and other services of the Church had to be done at the right time. And this, I'm sure, kept his life deep in the presence of God. One might almost ask what more could God and his Church want.

"He enjoyed a life of study. His days in Rome had prepared him for this, as they prepared all of us who enjoyed the Scots College and the Gregorian University. His special pleasure in recent years was the Osservatore Romano, which comes every week, and we used to discuss the weekly allocution of the Holy Father, for whom he had the greatest reverence. He had the genuine Romanità. Recently he told me that he prayed for the Holy Father every night of his life. A good and faithful servant. His sermons were the result of deep study and meditation and, despite his long experience, he wrote them every week. It gave him, he said, greater precision and confidence.

"I would like to thank now on his behalf the nursing staff of Roodlands Hospital. On Sunday night, when I found him at his most cheerful since his illness began, he said to me, 'They are good, always good,' despite the tiring nature of their attention and care. And I am grateful for the timely summons they gave to me late on Monday so that I could administer the last rites of the Church while doctors were still trying to revive him.

"And now let us conclude by thanking God for the fifty years of Canon Ward's priesthood in this diocese in our remembrance of him in our prayers that whatever human failings he may have had will be speedily remitted. For he was a priest who could have made his own the words of St. Augustine:

'Thou hast made us for thyself, O Lord, and restless is our heart till it rest in thee.'

"May he speedily find that final rest in God, whom he loved and served so well."

Reverend James K. Birnie — 6th November, 1977

Father James Kelly Birnie died in Edinburgh on 6th November, 1977, in the 65th year of his age and the 40th of his priesthood. At the funeral Mass in St. Mary's Cathedral, Edinburgh, on 9th November, prior to the interment at Mount Vernon Cemetery, the following panegyric was delivered by Rev. Thomas W. Power:

"We come here this morning to pray for the repose of the soul of Father James Birnie, priest of Jesus Christ, whose remains lie before us at the high altar of this Cathedral.

"We come here as his fellow priests in the company of our bishop; as members of his family, his relatives and friends; as religious sisters; as devoted parishioners whom he served so well for so many years.

" We come together to offer up the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass and, as we do so, we remember the words of St. Monica to her son, St. Augustine, ' All I ask of you is that wherever you may be you will always remember me at the altar of God.' It would have been Father Birnie's wish that we do the same on his behalf.

" James Kelly Birnie was the nephew of the late Canon Birnie and he was born here in Edinburgh on 29th April, 1913. He grew up in this city and he began his education at St. Peter's School. From there he went to the Abbey School of Fort Augustus and, on completing his studies, he decided that his vocation was to be a priest. He was sent by this archdiocese to Rome to study at the Scots College and he was ordained a priest on 18th December, 1937. Great was his joy to be ordained in Rome and to have spent his seminary training for the priesthood in Rome. This was a privilege he treasured for the whole of his life. He would have celebrated forty years in the priesthood next month had he been spared.

" When he returned from Rome he began his priestly life in this archdiocese with the late Mgr. Delaney in Dunfermline, a man whose influence remained with him for the rest of his days.

" He was appointed parish priest of Kelso, in the Borders, only two years after his ordination, and from there he went to West Calder, only to return to the Borders again as parish priest of Hawick.

" He loved the Borders, but his first love was his own home town of Edinburgh, and he was very happy to return here to become the parish priest of St. Andrew's, Ravelston, where he served for the next twenty-one years. It was while he was at St. Andrew's that he was appointed the Ecclesiastical Visitor to the convents of the archdiocese. It was only in the last few months, through ill health, that he left St. Andrew's for the Chaplaincy of the Little Sisters of the Poor at Gilmore Place. His last days were spent in the Western General Hospital for which he had been responsible for some twenty-one years.

" All who knew Father James respected him as a dedicated priest who served his parishioners with faithfulness and deep affection. He was a meticulous person as many will appreciate from his own personal way of life and the care and attention he lavished on the churches and presbyteries in his charge.

" Like some older priests, he found the post-Vatican II era somewhat difficult, but he accepted all the many changes that Rome asked of him and his people with obedience and prayerful resignation to the will of God.

" He was passionately fond of music and he derived great enjoyment and relaxation from singing, listening to music and training his many choirs of parishioners, who will long remember him in this rôle.

" He was faithful to his daily Mass which he offered with the same conscious care each day, and it was a sad day in his life when he was unable to offer the Holy Sacrifice.

"His devotion to Our Lady was a truly priestly one and the custom of saying the Rosary on even the shortest of car journeys was one that he rarely missed.

"As we reflect but briefly on his life, we remember him in death at this Requiem Mass. We do so with the hope that he be at rest and that we may meet again in the glory of the resurrection. We pray this with all our hearts.

"We see this day as one of sadness mingled with joy. Sadness, that one so close to us has gone and his place will never see him again. Joy, that he has passed through the door of Death into the great new life beyond. A life with Christ that he had been preparing for and had prepared so many others for in his priesthood. Death did not come to him suddenly or unprovided for. He was given time and he was ministered to conscientiously by his fellow priests of the Church he loved so dearly and served so faithfully.

"We pray that his Purgatory may be short.

"We pray also for his sisters, Margaret and Chrissie, for his close relatives, for his many friends, that they may receive strength and consolation from this Mass that we offer for the repose of his soul. May he rest in peace."

Very Reverend John Canon Bredin — 9th November, 1977

Canon John Bredin was born in Manorhamilton, Co. Leitrim, on 3rd November, 1901. He was educated at the local school, St. Patrick's, Cavan, and studied for the priesthood at St. Patrick's College, Carlow. He was ordained on 10th June, 1928, for the then Archdiocese of Glasgow.

He spent his priestly life in various parishes—as an assistant at St. Mary's, Abercromby Street, Glasgow; St. Brigid's, Kilbirnie; and St. Anne's, Hamilton; then as parish priest of St. Athanasius', Carluke; Our Lady and St. Joseph's, Glenboig; and for the final seventeen years of his life at St. Bernadette's in Motherwell, where he had built the present beautiful church. Only a week after his seventy-sixth birthday, he died suddenly during the early hours of Wednesday, 9th November. On the Tuesday he had attended a Day of Recollection at Craighead Retreat House, Bothwell, where he showed no signs of his imminent death. The Canon would have celebrated his Golden Jubilee in the priesthood next June. Arrangements had already been made. It was not to be. He will now celebrate that great event in his heavenly home.

Of a warm and friendly nature, he gave his company to all. Priests and people will long remember him for his stories, witticisms and cheerful greetings when meeting him at clerical and social gatherings. The interest he showed in everyone he came upon ensured that no one ever left him with a sore heart. Schoolchildren loved him and felt no shyness towards him. He was an adult in whose presence they could be completely at ease and be themselves. On his part, the children were always dear to his heart.

Canon Bredin was a priest with great devotion to daily Mass, the Divine Office, visits to the Blessed Sacrament—he made a Holy Hour every Thursday—and the daily Rosary or, we should rather say, daily Rosaries. His love of Our Lady was remarkable and frequently he made a pilgrimage to her shrine at Lourdes.

His many friends at Lough Derg will miss his annual visit, the highlight of which was the midnight Holy Hour which he personally conducted.

Bishop Francis Thomson led many priests, including his nephew, Father Joseph Bredin, in the concelebrated Requiem Mass in the presence of Bishop Charles Renfrew of Glasgow, on 11th November, in his beloved St. Bernadette's, which was crowded to capacity. Canon John Bredin now lies buried in St. Patrick's Cemetery, New Stevenston. His family, housekeeper, numerous clerical and lay friends and loyal parishioners have lost a good priest on earth.

“Lord Jesus, may he enjoy the light of your Presence and live with you forever.”

Reverend James Monaghan — 13th November, 1977

Father James Monaghan died on 13th November, 1977. At his Requiem Mass Bishop Thomson summed up the life and personality of the man: “He was quiet and unassuming, he did not push himself forward.”

Born at Donecarney, Drogheda, Co. Louth, on 1st March, 1926 he studied at St. Finian's College, Mullingar, before entering All Hallows' College, Dublin where he was ordained to the priesthood in 1952. How strange it seems that on the day before his death the Office of Readings should recall for him the college motto, “Go teach all nations.”

Father Monaghan, who celebrated his silver jubilee this year, was one of a class of twenty-seven who were ordained for dioceses in South Africa, Tasmania, Australia, New Zealand, America and England. With four others he came to Scotland.

His first assignment was a testing one. He was appointed to the recently formed parish of St. Bartholomew's, Coatbridge. Here he worked with the late Father Thomas McGhie, and shared his joy in seeing the new church completed.

Often he reminisced on his days at St. Patrick's, Shieldmuir, where he spent eleven years. He would speak with admiration and wonder at the seemingly limitless fund of quotations of the late Canon Denis Flynn, notably one on the Papacy: “No other institution is left standing which carries the mind back to the times when the smoke of sacrifice rose from the Pantheon. . . . The proudest royal houses are but yesterday when compared with the line of supreme Pontiffs. . . . The papacy remains not in decay, not as a mere antique, but full of life and vigour . . . and she may still exist in undiminished vigour when some traveller from New Zealand shall, in the midst of a vast solitude, take his stand on a broken arch of London Bridge to sketch the ruins of St. Paul's." (Macaulay.) That these words struck a chord in Father Monaghan gives us a further insight to his character: his great love for the Pope and his teaching.

Father James was nourished on scholasticism and one could say he lived up to his dictum Virtus in medio stat, "virtue lies in the golden mean." Father was always a middle of the road man, guiding his flock in a time of change on the straight path free from extremes on the right or left.

After serving five years in East Kilbride, he received his first parish in 1970, when he was appointed to undertake the task of establishing the new parish of St. Francis of Assisi, Baillieston. Three years of dedicated work saw the visible fruit of his labour when the new church was opened in 1973. This quiet devotional church reflects so much the spirit of the man that it will be his memorial.

On the 15th November it was filled to capacity when priests and people paid their final tribute. Archbishop Winning was present in the sanctuary when Bishop Thomson and more than sixty priests offered Mass. The readings were well chosen:

"The virtuous man, though he die before his time, will find rest. Length of days is not what makes a man honourable, nor number of years the measure of life; understanding, this is man's grey hairs, untarnished life, this is ripe old age" (Wis. 4).

"Our homeland is in heaven" (Phil. 3).

"Come to me all you who labour . . . and I will give you rest . . . learn from me, for I am gentle and humble in heart, and you shall find rest for your souls" (Matt. 11).

Father Jim, your mortal remains lie in St. Patrick's, New Stevenston. May your gentle and humble soul find rest in the Lord.

DIARY OF EVENTS

ADVENT, 1975 — PENTECOST, 1977

The Restoration of Saint Mary's Cathedral, Edinburgh — December, 1975

The contract was signed in December 1975 for the restoration and repair of the front of the Cathedral and the area adjoining the east side. Work began in January 1976 to pull down the burnt-out shell of the Theatre Royal, which had been purchased by the Cathedral authorities in 1956. This area was laid out as a piazza with ornamental stone paving and bedding areas for shrubs and trees. The wall of the Cathedral on the east side was faced with stone and a new entrance was built.

The porch and the baptistry, both of which were additions to the original 1814 building designed by James Gillespie Graham, were removed. The railings and garden at the front of the Cathedral were replaced with a flight of steps the full width of the frontage, and a new tracery window was constructed where the baptistry had been. The cleaning of the stonework added the final finishing touch.

With the completion of this work in July 1977 and the city's redevelopment programme for this part of Edinburgh, the Cathedral now enjoys a more open outlook.

School's Record Release — Wednesday, 10th December, 1975

The junior and senior choirs of St. Laurence's Primary School, Greenock, cut their first disc. The record is a 50-minute selection of fourteen Christmas carols. The choir members' age range was from eight to twelve years. The director of the choir was Miss Anne Trimble, with Mr. John Currie as accompanist and Mr. Tom Glancy as guitarist.

Proceeds from the record went to S.A.L.A.—Scottish Aid for Latin America—a cause pioneered by Rev. Neil Duffin, assistant, St. Laurence's Church, who worked for three and a half years in Latin America.

Divine Mission of Christ — Sunday, 11th January, 1976

In his pastoral letter for Vocations Sunday, read throughout Paisley Diocese, Bishop Stephen McGill said that while priests and religious have a particular commission, all the laity have a share in the divine mission of Christ for the evangelisation of the world.

Having developed the theme of Christ's vocation "to be the teacher, the Redeemer of all mankind in every age in every land," the pastoral posed the question: "How can the Lord fulfil his mission . . . in this last part of the twentieth century?"

" . . . In and through good parents, teachers and apostolic souls in every walk of life the Lord finds the instruments of his grace and goodness. Every baptised and confirmed Catholic is called upon to share in the divine life and saving mission of Christ . . ."

The pastoral continued: "However, the Lord invites some men and women to life-long co-operation with him in the teaching of his children, in his care of the sick, the troubled in mind, the aged, the poor, the physically and morally deprived at home and abroad, in the loving care of every person who needs help. These specially chosen friends of the Lord we call "Religious"—the good nuns and brothers of our religious orders." Dealing with the sacramental system of the Church which aids man in the various phases of life, the pastoral spoke of God's love having found a way. "He confers on certain chosen men a share in his own priesthood. It is through the ministry of his priests the Lord accomplishes these divine mysteries of grace . . ."

Opening of St. Matthew's, Kilmarnock — Sunday, 24th April, 1976

Concelebrating with the new parish priest, Fr. Patrick McSorley, Canon George McCafferty, Fr. John Donnelly, Fr. John Kinsler, Fr. Samuel McGuinness and Fr. Joseph Boland, Bishop Joseph McGee of Galloway today officially opened the new church/hall complex in New Farm Loch area of Kilmarnock.

The new church and hall are linked in such a way that with the minimum of bother the area of the hall becomes an additional wing of the church when the need arises. The design is by Samuel Gilchrist of Irvine, and the building was erected by McTaggart Construction of Dalry.

The opening of St. Matthew's means that there are now four parishes in the town of Kilmarnock. Canon Matthew Littleton of St.

Joseph's has seen his parish grow and spread to such an extent over the past few years that three new churches have had to be provided for the people. 150 years ago one priest served Ayrshire, now in one Ayrshire town there are four parishes.

The Opening of the New St. Marie's Church, Kirkcaldy — Tuesday, 1st June, 1976

With the drift of people from town centres to the suburbs, the Kirkcaldy Presbytery of the Church of Scotland found that it had excess facilities within the town. Proposals were made on 31st December, 1972, for the Dunnikier and Victoria congregations to amalgamate. For a period the Church of Scotland held alternate services in the two churches, while considering which one should be closed. It was eventually agreed that the Dunnikier church should cease after seventy-five years of use.

Only a few yards down the road from the Dunnikier church stood the old St. Marie's Catholic Church which was just over 100 years old. From time to time it had been renovated, but it was rapidly becoming inadequate for local needs. Plans had been made to build a new church, but these had to be shelved for a variety of reasons.

Negotiations started between the Kirkcaldy Presbytery and Diocesan authorities for the purchase of the Dunnikier church to be the new St. Marie's. An offer was made, and was accepted on 15th May, 1974.

During the next eighteen months alterations were carried out; the organ was renovated and re-sited at the back of the church, and the altar was placed prominently at the front of the sanctuary. The first Mass was celebrated on 18th December, 1975, and Cardinal Gray officiated at the solemn opening on 1st June, 1976.

The Closure of Scotus Academy Announced — Sunday, 26th September, 1976

The Provincial of the Christian Brothers announced that the Primary Department of Scotus Academy would close in July 1977, followed in July 1978 by the complete closure of the school and the withdrawal of the Brothers. Three reasons were given for this decision: a shortage of Brothers to cover all their commitments in the province; the failure to obtain planning permission; and the very difficult financial position which resulted from the inability to develop and expand on the Corstorphine Hill site.

Since the school opened in 1953, it has had excellent results from a wide range of abilities. Scotus has provided six priests, two religious, one doctor and many lawyers and accountants. Over the years the school has enjoyed the untiring support of the Scotus Association which organised social and fund-raising events. R. H.

Paisley Vestments for Holy Father — Saturday, 16th October, 1976

To mark the Canonization of St. John Ogilvie, Bishop Stephen McGill, clergy, religious and faithful of Paisley Diocese made offering to Pope Paul VI of a magnificent commemorative Mass chasuble, stole, burse and chalice veil. To a design suggested by Mgr. Charles Burns—a priest of Paisley Diocese, Vatican archivist and an authority on ecclesiastical heraldry—the vestments were made at a convent in Germany by Franciscan Sisters renowned for their liturgical art.

The Sisters made the vestments in pure silk, which was both hand-spun and hand-woven and produced in such a way that the tonality of the cloth and colour would be seen to best advantage. The colour is deep crimson, so not garish, but neither is it dark or sombre. The beauty of the chasuble consists in the ample folds and the subtle effects of the light on the varied texture of the fabric. The stole, etc., are all in the same material and all are lined with very fine soft silk in a slightly lighter shade of red which harmonises with the outer colour.

The stole, which is designed to be worn above the chasuble, but was not so worn by the Pope, has been embroidered with the following coats of arms: top right (breast level), the arms of Paul V, who was Pope at the time of John Ogilvie's martyrdom; top left, the arms of Pope Paul VI; bottom right, the Ogilvie arms; and bottom left, the arms of Bishop Stephen McGill of Paisley.

These four arms have been embroidered chiefly with gold and silver thread, with shadows and highlights done very delicately with blue and green threads. The arms are linked by an abstract, conventional design in gold thread, also very sober but producing a rich effect. Historical by their very nature, the arms in no way distract from the sacred character of the stole. The Jesuit monogram—JHS—is embroidered in gold on the burse and on front of the chalice veil.

Canonization of Scots Jesuit Martyr — Sunday, 17th October, 1976

On Sunday, 17th October, 1976, while celebrating Mass in the Patriarchal Basilica of St. Peter in Rome, the Holy Father, Pope Paul VI, pronounced in Latin the ritual formula: "For the honour of the Most Holy Trinity, for the exaltation of the Catholic faith and the increase of the Christian life, by the authority of our Lord Jesus Christ, of the Holy Apostles Peter and Paul and by Our own authority, after having reflected for a long time and invoked the divine aid, having obtained the counsel of many of our brother Bishops, we declare and define that Blessed John Ogilvie is a Saint and we inscribe his name in the Calendar of the Saints and establish that he should be devoutly honoured among the Saints in the universal Church. In the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit. Amen."

Present in the greatest church in Christendom to hear this declaration and definition were some 5,000 Scots pilgrims, few of them dry-eyed, who had come to witness the end of a road which began, in one sense, at Glasgow Cross on Tuesday, 10th March, 1615.

The Canonization was the culmination of years of prayers and preparation. The final stages became possible when, on 12th February, 1976, the Pope signed a decree declaring that the medically inexplicable cure of John Fagan from terminal cancer was in fact miraculous, and dispensed the promoters of the Cause from the necessity of finding and proving a second miracle. Its public announcement in Glasgow gave the signal for the final preparations to be made. A special pilgrimage office was set up in Glasgow to co-ordinate the travel and accommodation arrangements of the thousands of pilgrims expected to make the journey to Rome, and to ensure their access to St. Peter's and to the Papal Audience of later in the week. This office was under the general direction of Fr. Thomas Reilly of Easterhouse, one of the Vice Postulators of the Cause for Canonization, the day to day administration being undertaken by Fr. John McKee of Carntyne. Later in the summer, the Bishops' Conference established an Executive Co-ordinating Committee, under the chairmanship of Mgr. Charles Renfrew, V.G., Glasgow, to undertake the arrangements, from the Scottish end, of the Canonization Mass itself, particularly the allocation of ceremonial duties among clergy and laity, and arrangements for the other celebrations which were to take place in Rome.

Sunday morning dawned bright and warm, and the pilgrims gathered in the vast square in front of St. Peter's, eagerly looking forward to taking part in a celebration unique in the history of the Catholic Church in our country. Before entering the Basilica to the sound of the bagpipes, they saw hanging from the balcony above the central door the banner of the new saint's coat of arms, specially granted by the Lord Lyon King of Arms for the occasion, and which replaced the portrait of the saint which customarily hangs there on the occasion of a Canonization. The banner was prepared by Mr. James Ogilvie-Forbes, a London art master and collateral descendant of the new saint.

As the pilgrims waited patiently for the sacred rite to begin, the guests who were to be given places of honour were shown to their seats: Mr. and Mrs. John Fagan; members of the saint's kin, such as Dom David Ogilvie-Forbes, O.S.B.; Sqn. Ldr. Malcolm Ogilvie-Forbes of Boyndlie, Major Ranald Ogilvie of Laverlaw and Mrs. Ogilvie; Viscount and Viscountess Hambleton; H.R.H. the Princess Alexandra and her husband, Hon. Angus Ogilvy, his brother the Earl of Airlie, Chief of the Clan, and the Countess of Airlie, his other brother, Hon. James Ogilvy and Mrs. Ogilvy; the Lord and Lady Provost of Glasgow, Mr. and Mrs. Peter T. McCann; the British Minister to the Holy See, Mr. Dugald Malcolm, and many others, clergy and laity alike. The Episcopal Church in Scotland was represented by its former Primus, Bishop Moncrieff and by Bishop Sessford of Moray, Ross and Caithness, and Canon Barkway of Gourrock.

Promptly at 9.30, the papal procession entered the Basilica. As the Pope was carried the length of the nave on the sedia gestatoria, he was preceded by the three Cardinals who were to function as deacons: Cardinal Guerri, deacon of the Mass, and Cardinals Opilio Rossi and Pironio, deacons assistant. They in their turn were preceded by those who were privileged to concelebrate the Mass with the Holy Father: Cardinal Gray of St. Andrews and Edinburgh, Archbishop Winning of Glasgow, Bishops McGee of Galloway, Hart of Dunkeld, McGill of Paisley, Thomson of Motherwell and MacPherson of Argyll and the Isles; Mgr. Michael Fitzpatrick, Vicar Capitular of Aberdeen; Mgr. Sean O'Kelly, Rector of the Pontifical Scots College in Rome; and the General of the Society of Jesus, Fr.

Pedro Arrupe. Also in the procession were the Abbots of Fort Augustus and Pluscarden, Mgri. Flanagan of Bellshill and MacKellaig of Daliburgh as Prelates of Honour, Mgri. Murphy and Rossi of Glasgow as Chaplains of Honour, and the students of the Pontifical Scots College who were to serve at the Mass. It was noted that the Pope was wearing a set of red vestments specially made as a gift to him on behalf of the Diocese of Paisley in celebration of the occasion. It was later seen that the Holy Father was using at the Mass the silver chalice and ciborium commissioned for presentation to him by the Archdiocese of Glasgow.

While the procession was making its way to the papal altar under Michelangelo's dome, the antiphon at the entry was chanted by the choir of St. Aloysius' College in Glasgow, who, under the direction of their choirmaster, Mr. Daniel Divers, and accompanied by their organist, Mr. Liam Devlin, had been accorded the unique privilege of sharing the choral singing with the Sistine Choir.

After the introductory rites of the Mass, the Prefect of the Sacred Congregation for the Causes of Saints, Cardinal Corrado Bafile, accompanied by the Postulator of this particular Cause, Fr. Paolo Molinari, S.J., Postulator-General of the Society of Jesus, and by the Consistorial Advocate who had performed the legal work in connection with it, Avv. Giulio Dante, approached the Pope to make their formal public request for the Canonization, and to read a short profile of the candidate for recognition as a saint. The Pope's reply was given by the Head of the Office of Latin Letters, Abbot Carlo Egger of the Canons Regular of the Lateran, who invited all those present to implore divine aid and to invoke the intercession of the saints. This was followed by the Litany of the Saints, which on this occasion included the names of a number of Scottish saints, to which the whole congregation responded on their knees, and which was concluded with a prayer sung by the Holy Father. The long-awaited moment was now come. All stood as the Pope, seated on his cathedra, solemnly declared to a profoundly silent congregation there present, as also to those who succeeded in listening to B.B.C. Radio Scotland, representing the whole of the Church, that John Ogilvie is a saint and is to be so honoured by the whole Church.

Scarcely had the members of the congregation answered "Amen" to this, when, chests swelling with legitimate pride and heartfelt gratitude, they broke into wave upon joyful wave of applause, and the organ sounded. The Pope then gave his assent to the issue of the appropriate Letters Apostolic (which finally reached Scotland in the following July, and have found a place of safe custody in Columba House, the Scottish Catholic Archives in Edinburgh), accepted the thanks of the Cardinal Prefect of the Congregation, the Postulator and the Consistorial Advocate, and brought the rite of Canonization to a close by intoning the Gloria for the choir and congregation to sing alternately and chanting the prayer from the Mass of the new saint.

The first lesson was read, in English, by Mr. Andrew Mann, a student of the Royal Scots College, Valladolid, who comes from Keith, and the second in Italian by a Paulist Father, while the Gospel was sung, first in Latin by the Cardinal Deacon of the Mass and then, as always at Solemn Papal Masses, in Greek by a deacon of the Greek Rite.

The Holy Father then addressed his homily, partly in English, to those present: "We have great joy in being able to announce to all of God's pilgrim Church on earth the glorious name of a new Saint, that of John Ogilvie, who died a martyr in Glasgow, on 10th March 1615, and who has already been accorded the honour of beatification by our venerable predecessor Pope Pius XI, on 22nd December 1929. . . . The conclusion of this very simple talk of ours cannot be without a word of ardent satisfaction for you, sons and daughters of Scotland, who have come to this solemn and culminating canonisation of the new Saint—the Saint whom you, above all others, have the right to call your own.

"We are happy to recognize in this sympathetic and heroic figure of a man, a saint and a martyr the symbol of your own religious, strong and generous land. And in St. John Ogilvie we willingly greet a glorious champion of your people, an ideal exemplar of your past history, a magnificent inspiration for your happy future. We honour in St. John Ogilvie an outstanding member of that Society of Jesus which has given so many other valiant soldiers like him to the cause of Christ and of civilization. In him we jubilantly greet a beloved son of the Catholic Church, a typical citizen of the world who is called to discover the light for its harmony, progress and peace in the faith of Christ.

"Honour to you, representatives of a Scotland that has given to humanity such a great hero of freedom and faith."

His Holiness then intoned the Creed, which was taken up by the entire congregation singing in one tongue their profession of the Faith for which St. John Ogilvie died.

While the offertory gifts were being presented to the Pope, the choir and congregation sang suitable chants and hymns in Latin and English. Taking part in the Offertory Procession were representatives, religious or lay, of all the dioceses of Scotland, and of the Ogilvie family.

At the appropriate moment, the concelebrants joined the Holy Father at the altar to renew the Sacrifice of Calvary, and all were surrounded by the fifty priests (thirty from Scotland) who were to administer Holy Communion to the congregation, each holding a ciborium with hosts for consecration and distribution.

At the Communion, about a hundred people, some descendants of the saint, and others from all aspects of Catholic life in Scotland, received the Host which is our Lord at the hands of his Vicar on earth, while the rest of the congregation received Him from the priests deputed for this ministry. During the Communion, hymns and chants were sung in Latin and English as well as in other modern languages.

At the end of the Mass the Holy Father imparted the Apostolic Blessing and the congregation sang, in a variety of languages, the hymn "Holy God, we praise Thy Name," a metrical version of the Latin "Te Deum," the great hymn of thanksgiving, which customarily ended such a celebration.

In the Chapel of St. Sebastian, near the main entrance of the Basilica, the Pope held conversation with the concelebrants and then, after unvesting, received the Royal party, followed by Bishop Monaghan, auxiliary in Edinburgh, who presented to him other descendants of the saint, Mr. and Mrs. Fagan, some of the doctors who had been involved in examining the miraculous cure, including Dr. Archibald McDonald, the Fagans' family doctor, who, though not himself a Catholic, first recognised the humanly inexplicable cure, the Lord and Lady Provost of Glasgow, and representatives of each of the dioceses of Scotland who were accompanying their diocesan gifts to the Holy Father. For the record, apart from those already mentioned, the gifts from the dioceses, each intended to be evocative of its place of origin, were: St. Andrews and Edinburgh, Edinburgh crystal and a silver quaiich; Aberdeen, a china dinner service; Argyll and the Isles, two cromachs; Dunkeld, a pair of candlesticks; Galloway, a mohair rug; and Motherwell, a stainless steel monstrance, designed and made in the technical department of Our Lady's High School, Motherwell. A final gift, from the whole of Scotland, was a Land Rover for use in the missions of Nigeria (which are staffed, in part, by priests from the Archdiocese of St. Andrews and Edinburgh), which was to have been presented to the Pope at the public audience of the following Wednesday. Although delivery difficulties prevented this, it has now reached its destination.

At midday, the pilgrims joined the immense throng in St. Peter's Square to recite the Angelus with the Pope, to hear him speak again on the subject of the new saint and to receive his blessing once more.

Thereafter, the Royal party, the Scottish Bishops and other notables, together with representative guests from the clergy, religious and laity of Scotland repaired to the Scots College to enjoy a celebration lunch. In the course of the meal, a messenger from the Vatican brought, as a gift to the College from the Pope, one of the barrels of wine and a cage of doves presented to him at the Mass. To the applause of all those present, the Rector presented the wine to Princess Alexandra and the doves to ex-Primus Moncrieff as mementoes of the joyous occasion.

On the Monday, the pilgrims made their way to the chief Jesuit church, the Gesù, to assist at a Mass concelebrated by Cardinal Gray, the Scottish Bishops, Fr. Arrupe, the Jesuit General, and many other Jesuits and priests from Scotland. Now that the celebrations were away from St. Peter's, the ceremonial for this and the following day was in the care of Fr. Noel Woods of St. Andrew's Cathedral, Glasgow, and the music under the general direction of Mgr. Francis Duffy of Ayr, and led by the St. Aloysius' Choir. The homily was delivered by Fr. Edward Sheridan, S.J., from Canada, English Assistant to the Jesuit General, who pointed out the part his religious life had played in St. John Ogilvie's mission and martyrdom, and reminded his hearers that holiness was the vocation of all.

At the end of the Mass, it was announced that the Holy Father had honoured Fr. Thomas Reilly, one of the Vice Postulators of the Cause, by appointing him a Prelate of Honour with the title of "Monsignor," and three of the doctors connected with the Cause, Dr. Andrew Curran, Dr. Aloysius Dunn and Dr. John Fitzsimons, by conferring on them the Knighthood of St. Silvester.

On the Tuesday, another concelebrated Mass of thanksgiving was celebrated in the Basilica of St. Paul's-without-the-Walls, the principal celebrant on this occasion being the Archbishop of Glasgow. In his homily, the Cardinal Archbishop of St. Andrews and Edinburgh spoke of what the Canonization meant for Scotland and of the manner in which we ought to imitate our new Saint. At this Mass, too, the Cardinal presented Mgr. Reilly with his Brief of Appointment, and invested the new Knights with their insignia.

The final general act of the pilgrimage was the Papal General Audience on the Wednesday, in the new Nervi Auditorium beside St. Peter's. The Scots, who formed the largest single group present, heard the Pope welcome them and refer to the occasion of their pilgrimage to Rome, the Canonization of St. John Ogilvie: "And now a welcome—a very special welcome—to the group of visitors from Scotland.

"We vividly recall with you the events of last Sunday: the Canonization of your outstanding fellow-countryman, John Ogilvie, priest and martyr. You know that we share your joy and your pride—the joy and pride of all Scotland—at the supreme honour paid to a beloved son of your land.

"Through the intercession of the new saint, we pray that all the values to which his life and death gave witness may long live among your people. Through you we send our greeting back to your country, into your churches and into your homes—to wherever anyone is gathered in the charity of Christ, or in the goodwill of brotherhood.

"And through the opportunity afforded us by the B.B.C., we are happy to greet all those throughout Great Britain who will hear our voice.

"May the peace of Christ be with you all!"

At the end of the audience, the Holy Father was joined by Cardinal Gray, Archbishop Winning, the other Scottish Bishops, and the other bishops present, in imparting the blessing.

Thus was brought to an end the event which had been so longed-for, and which was for so many who had taken part in it an experience, above all else spiritual, which they will ever be thankful not to have missed.

Motherwell Diocese at the Canonization of St. John Ogilvie — Sunday, 17th October, 1976

Many groups from Motherwell parishes and schools were present with their bishop and many of the clergy for the Canonization ceremonies in Rome. Among those with honoured positions in St. Peter's were Mr. Patrick Rooney, M.A., a former headmaster, well known

Conference on Secondary Education at Motherwell — Sunday, 7th November, 1976

There was a good attendance of parents and others at the first of two conferences on Secondary Education in the diocese organised by the Lay Apostolate Council in the Civic Centre, Motherwell. The introductory address was given by Mr. John J. Smith, Rector of Columba High School, Coatbridge, in which he emphasised the relatively high proportion of non-Catholic staff employed in Catholic secondary schools; there followed a series of talks by headteachers and others, interspersed with open periods for questions and discussion. Bishop Thomson, Mgr. Francis Coyle (Catholic representative on the Education Committee of Strathclyde Regional Council) and Mr. James Hamilton, M.P., were present throughout the evening, which proved both controversial and informative. Official Opening of St. Stephen's Church, Coatbridge —
Sunday, 21st November, 1976

During the first half of this century Catholics in Coatbridge were served by four churches—the nineteenth-century foundations of St. Patrick's, St. Augustine's, and St. Mary's, and All Saints, Coatdyke, dating from 1902. Since 1950 no less than five parishes have been added to cope with the spreading population of the town, and St. Stephen's, in the Sikeside district, is the last of these to have its church formally opened. Addressing the parishioners at Mass, Bishop Thomson praised the work of Fr. John Delaney, who has been responsible for the 2,400-strong parish since its foundation in 1973. His Lordship emphasised that the fine building which was the reward for the efforts of priest and community, was in itself only a means to a further end—the building up of the true people of God. Among the concelebrants with the Bishop and Fr. Delaney were Mgr. Philip Flanagan of Sacred Heart Church, Bellshill; Canon William Duddy of St. Patrick's, Coatbridge; Canon Thomas Brady of St. Augustine's, Milton; Fr. Patrick Walsh of All Saints, the parent parish; Fr. John Moss of St. Augustine's; Fr. James McMahan, Rector of St. Peter's College, Cardross; Fr. John McQuade of the Scottish Catholic Tribunal; Fr. Bernard Oates of St. Peter's, Hamilton; and Fr. Charles Pridgeon, S.J., who preached the homily.

Concelebrated Mass marked the Silver Jubilee of the founding of St. Andrew's parish, Larkfield, Greenock, with Bishop Stephen McGill as principal concelebrant. Homilist Mgr. Matthew Kinsella, V.G., of Paisley, former pastor of St. Andrew's and builder of St. Andrew's new church, paid particular tribute to parish founder Rev. James A. O'Neill. He outlined the difficulties encountered in post-World War II years when the parish came into existence. He also had a special word of praise for the people and their loyalty and spirit of co-operation. The parish now has an estimated Catholic population of 5,600.

Purchase of Church at Coatdyke — Wednesday, 1st December, 1976

The union of two Church of Scotland congregations in the Coatdyke area left Trinity Church, Muiryhall Street, a fine, red sandstone building close to Coatdyke Cross, unoccupied. It has now been purchased for the parish of All Saints, to substitute for the seventy-year-old church in Saline Street, which has now outlived its usefulness. Adaptations to the Muiryhall Street complex (which includes a hall and committee-room) will continue for some time, but it is hoped that it will be put into full liturgical use within a few months. The change of centre will also bring a change of title for this parish, since it has been decided to adopt the name "Church of the Holy Trinity and All Saints" in deference to their new church's already long tradition of worship.

Centenary of St. Mary's, Paisley — Sunday, 12th December, 1976

About thirty priests concelebrated a special Mass of thanksgiving in St. Mary's Church, Paisley, on the occasion of the centenary of the founding of St. Mary's parish.

Homilist Rev. John Fitzsimmons, a native of the parish, traced the parish's history and admired the faith of the Church authorities of the day in establishing St. Mary's mission in Paisley West End in spite of the relative poverty of those times. He praised the traditions that were established through the years and how everyone was proud to belong to St. Mary's. He mentioned that each of the six pastors who served St. Mary's in the 100 years had made his own particular contribution to the life and progress of the parish.

The Rev. William Dillon, Kilkenny-born, was first resident priest and took formal possession of St. Mary's on 15th December, 1876.

The celebrations were overshadowed by the death on 20th November, of Rev. Eugene Divney, the sixth pastor, who had made all the plans for the centenary.

Children's Mass on Television — Sunday, 19th December, 1976

One of the most striking of Scotland's modern Catholic churches, St. Bride's in Bothwell, was the setting for an unusual televised Mass for the Fourth Sunday of Advent. The congregation at the Mass, which was televised live, consisted entirely of children of the parish; Bishop Thomson celebrated the liturgy in an appropriate form and Fr. Henry Allison of St. Bride's assisted. The effectiveness of the ceremony was due in large measure to the work of Miss O'Neill, headmistress of the primary school, who conducted the children's singing.

A local branch of The Innocents, originally set up in response to a recommendation of a Diocesan Senate sub-committee chaired by Fr. Hugh Kelly, today began full operation. Those involved in the emergency-telephone and counselling service to combat the abortion situation have been carefully prepared for this delicate work: doctors, members of the Samaritans, and legal and social experts gave a series of lectures in autumn of last year, and these were followed up by several conference-type meetings. Franciscan Sisters of the Immaculate Conception are in charge at Innocents House, the former St. Patrick's presbytery in Laird Street, Coatbridge, which will be the permanent centre for counselling and follow-up work.

It still has not been fully thought out, and plays far too little part in the concrete belief and practice of Christians." At the A.G.M. were also Rev. Joseph Devine, Episcopal Vicar for the Laity. Second Education Conference at Motherwell — Sunday, 30th January, 1977

The second conference organised by the Lay Apostolate Council of Motherwell Diocese to consider educational provision within the diocese attracted a good attendance at the Civic Centre on the evening of Education Sunday. Sister Francis, S.N.D., Principal of Notre Dame College of Education, gave the first talk, on training and certification; theory and practice were dealt with by Fr. Thomas McGurk, Director of Religious Education, Mrs. Vera Hughes of St. Stephen's Primary School, Coatbridge, and Mr. John Casey of Notre Dame College of Education. Fr. Feast of St. John Ogilvie — Thursday, 10th March, 1977

To celebrate the Feast of our new Scottish Saint, Bishop McGee of Galloway invited his people to come to the Cathedral of the Good Shepherd in Ayr to offer a Mass of Thanksgiving.

About fifty of the priests of the diocese concelebrated with the Bishop and the cathedral was packed for the occasion—people having travelled from as far away as Largs in the north and Gretna in the south.

The music was under the direction of Mr. Harry McFarlane, and the Cathedral choir led the people in singing the "Mass in Honour of St. John Ogilvie" composed by Mr. McFarlane for the canonization ceremony in Rome.

After Mass a reception was held in the Cathedral Hall.

Tribute to Faithful Companion Sisters — Tuesday, 22nd March, 1977

A special congregation of about 500 participated in Mass in St. Margaret's High School, Paisley, concelebrated by Bishop Stephen McGill, Rev. Kieran Gallacher, former chaplain and Rev. Andrew Carroll, present chaplain. The occasion was to mark the merging of St. Margaret's with St. Mirin's Academy and as a tribute to Sister Anne Marie, the last head teacher of St. Margaret's, and to all the Sisters Faithful Companions of Jesus.

In 1889, the Faithful Companions of Jesus arrived in Paisley through the instrumentality of Canon William Chisholm, St. Mirin's, Paisley, and took up residence in East Buchanan Street in what is now St. Mirin's Cathedral House. In 1907, the present St. Margaret's School was opened with subsequent additions being made until the new building was formally opened in June, 1966.

The Faithful Companions of Jesus also taught in various Paisley schools, notably St. Catherine's, St. Mary's and St. James' as well as St. James', Renfrew and, for a short time, St. Luke's, Glasgow.

Solemn Dedication of St. David's Church, Dalkeith — Saturday, 7th May, 1977

The Provost and members of the Chapter, representatives of the Church of Scotland, and of the Episcopal Church, civic leaders, Lord and Lady Lothian, the Honourable Mrs. Kerr and Lord and Lady Ancram were among 500 people who attended the consecration of St. David's by Cardinal Gray.

The Church was built 123 years ago by the Dowager Marchioness of Lothian on land gifted by the then Duchess of Buccleuch. When new laws on Feu-duty were introduced in Scotland the feu on the site was redeemed and the last obstacle to the consecration of the Church was removed.

During the ceremony Cardinal Gray spoke of his joy in consecrating St. David's, particularly because he had celebrated his first post-ordination Mass there on 16th June, 1935. The Cardinal placed relics of St. Vitalis under the altar, and presented to St. David's a portrait of Pope Pius IX, who had gifted the relics to the Church.

Answer to the Rationalists — Sunday, 15th May, 1977

Close on 1,000 people, including many disabled, joined in the annual Lourdes day rally in the grounds of St. Joseph's College, Lochwinnoch. Bishop Stephen McGill concelebrated Mass with ten priests.

Homilist, Rev. Bernard J. Canning, St. Laurence's, Greenock, said that as Lourdes was the answer to the rationalists of the mid-nineteenth century, so it was the answer to the present age—"the age of indifference created by those who try to devalue the supernatural and contend we are all going the same way; the age of integrationists who want, in effect, to take down the Crucifix in our schools and to rob us, and future generations, of the supernatural in our schools; the age of the abortionists who trample under foot the sacredness of human life; the age of the humanists who advocate permissiveness leading to the breakdown of family life and all morality . . . The world of 1858 needed Lourdes and its message just as our world of today needs it as a school of lively faith, a pillar of firm hope, a centre of ardent charity . . ." B. J. C.

Success of Campaign to Save Craiglockhart College of Education — Thursday, 19th May, 1977

The falling birth rate and stringent financial control on public spending forced the government to consider economies in the training of teachers. The danger to Craiglockhart had been apparent long before the publication of the Consultative Document: "Teacher Training from 1977 Onwards." Of the ten Scottish colleges, Craiglockhart is the smallest; in September, 1975, The Scotsman linked Craiglockhart, Craigie and Callendar Park as candidates for closure; in 1975, St. Andrew's House proposed a review of the supply of teachers and in spring, 1976, suggested a drastic reduction in the numbers of students in all colleges. A modified version of these proposals was implemented for the 1976-77 intake. In November, 1976 the Scottish Educational Journal forecast the closure of Craiglockhart.

The long delayed Consultative Document, published in January, 1977, contained proposals for the reduction of Scottish colleges from ten to six. Craiglockhart was among those to be closed. Training of Catholic teachers in the East of Scotland was to be catered for in a Catholic unit or element merged with a non-denominational college.

What precisely did the S.E.D. mean by "merger," "unit" and "element." It became apparent that the S.E.D. had only a limited understanding of what Religious Education involved and thought that specific classes in Religious Education were all that prospective teachers required.

In the eighteen weeks following the publication of the government's proposals, a sustained campaign for the retention of Craiglockhart was mounted by all sections of the community. Not only was support forthcoming from the Catholic community nationally, but also from many non-Catholics, individuals and groups who had contact with Craiglockhart.

It was important that the possible fate of the college was clearly and forcefully put before the public. This work was much aided by the co-operation of the Catholic Press Office and bodies like the Catholic Education Commission and the Association of Catholic Teachers.

While submissions were being prepared by the Hierarchy, the Board of Governors, Religious Education Advisers, the Lothian Association of Catholic Head Teachers and others, parish priests were asked for their support, a press statement was issued opposing the proposals on religious and educational grounds, and the first of two information leaflets was distributed to all Scottish M.P.s. A co-ordinating committee was formed in the college to channel the various moves. Informal visits were made to the college by Cardinal Gray, Archbishop Winning and Bishop Thomson. Many M.P.s, from all parties, visited Craiglockhart to familiarise themselves with the situation. A meeting of the Scottish Hierarchy was held at Craiglockhart and a press conference given.

With Cardinal Gray's permission, Craiglockhart students addressed Sunday congregations at the end of Mass, stating the facts of the case and asking for support for a petition to the Secretary of State—32,921 signatures were obtained within a few days.

The help of councillors and M.P.s was enlisted to take the debate into the political arena at local level and in the House of Commons. Representatives of Craiglockhart lobbied M.P.s at Westminster. Many searching questions were asked in the House, which led to a government defeat in the Scottish Grand Committee. Later, in a subsequent debate, the government was defeated on the floor of the House.

The Association of Catholic Teachers organised an exceptionally well attended public rally in the Assembly Rooms, Edinburgh, which was addressed by Bishops, councillors, M.P.s and representatives of the College and the Lay Apostolate. Craiglockhart held an all-night vigil of prayer and also joined in a protest demonstration at St. Andrew's House. Politicians continued the pressure by raising the subject in an Adjournment Debate.

College Board of Governors met permanent officials of the S.E.D. to discuss the meaning of the statistics relating to Catholic population and its educational needs, and the importance of Craiglockhart for in-service training and research in Religious Education.

B.B.C. news announced that M.P.s had received vast correspondence protesting at the closure of the colleges, and a Gallup poll by the Scottish Catholic Observer showed solid support for Catholic schooling.

After the Easter Holidays a public rally was held in Lochgelly. This too was extremely well attended. A delegation of the Scottish Hierarchy discussed the proposals with the Secretary of State in Edinburgh. Delegates to the Scottish Conservative Conference, in Perth, were lobbied.

On Wednesday, 18th May, 1977 the Secretary of State announced his decision—Craiglockhart was to maintain its independent status.

Cardinal's Visit to The General Assembly — Wednesday, 25th May, 1977

In the presence of Her Majesty the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh, the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland gave Cardinal Gray a resounding welcome as the Catholic observer to the Assembly. Cardinal Gray was the first Cardinal to visit the Assembly and the Moderator, the Right Rev. John Gray set the tone for the visit in his cordial and humorous welcoming address.

Cardinal Gray replied that the occasion was a deeply moving one for him and one which he would long remember. He recognised the many difficulties which beset relations between the Churches but he was heartened by the growing area of shared faith which had brought joy to many Christians. In the light of what had happened in the last few years Cardinal Gray thought that there was room for optimism for the future.

In the afternoon the General Assembly went on to discuss one area of the developing understanding between the Churches, the Report of the Panel of Doctrine.

The Opening of St. Peter-in-Chains, Inverkeithing — Thursday, 26th May, 1977

A guard of honour of Scouts and Guides welcomed Cardinal Gray as he arrived to open the new church at Inverkeithing. This Church is served from Burntisland parish and caters for the needs of Inverkeithing, North Queensferry, Hillend and part of Dalgety Bay. The new building is a dual-purpose structure, with sliding wood panels which can separate the hall from the church.

Among the 250 people who attended the opening by Cardinal Gray were: Mgr. Grady, V.G., Fr. Boyle from Rosyth, priests from the East Fife deanery, Fr. Edward Gilchrist and Fr. Patrick Quinn, both of whom are former parish priests of Burntisland, and Mr. Johnston, the local Church of Scotland minister.

Fr. Boyle preached the sermon. He traced the history of Inverkeithing, and showed how, through the ages, this area of Fife had played an important role in the life of the Church. Queen Margaret landed at nearby North Queensferry; later the Augustinian Canons established a monastery on Inchcolm, an island in the Forth. In modern times, the area was home for men working on the Forth Rail Bridge. The new Church of St. Peter-in-Chains continues as evidence of the Faith of this part of Fife.

LEPROSY CAN BE CURED

Wonderfully boosted by the response to Mr. Stratford Johns' ("Barlow") appeal on BBC Television, the funds collected by the St. Francis' Leprosy Guild in 1976 amounted to £105,000.

Please help the Guild to maintain its benefits to leprosy sufferers around the world at this new high level by your generous donation today.

A wheel chair costs £125 now. £5 buys a course of drugs to cure a child in Africa.

Please send a gift from yourself, your family or community.
